A lot has changed in the past 100 years, but the work of the Garden Club of Virginia has not.

The women of the Garden Club of Virginia have always had their own way of getting things done. Whether advocating against unsightly billboards or making tree tags to properly name (and save) every tree on Richmond’s Capitol Square, the results are the same – a greener, more beautiful Virginia for all to enjoy. This year marks the 100th anniversary of this female-led organization.

The scale of its signature event, Historic Garden Week, is unprecedented. This spring it includes eight days of continuous touring in 29 different communities featuring more than 150 private properties. For the garden lover it has few comparisons; for the state, this lifeline funds the ongoing restoration and preservation of Virginia’s historic public gardens and landscapes, and a research fellowship program for landscape architects.

Starting with Kenmore in Fredericksburg, then Stratford Hall, and including projects at iconic sites Monticello, Bacon’s Castle and the State Arboretum in Boyce, to name just a few – a diversity of gardens is represented in our projects.

The Garden Club of Virginia was instrumental in the founding of the Virginia State Park system in the 1920s. As our Centennial gift, we have given the commonwealth $500,000 in grants to support 54 projects in communities both large and small. This award-winning and nationally recognized program continues a tradition of championing state parks and protecting our natural landscapes.

This commemorative edition of the Guidebook highlights our important work throughout Virginia.

Throughout its 100 years, the Garden Club of Virginia has held fast to its core goals: to preserve Virginia’s natural resources and historic landscapes and to inform, educate and challenge others to become engaged in those issues.

Welcome to Historic Garden Week in Virginia!

For 87 years, the Garden Club of Virginia (GCV) has welcomed visitors from all over the world to celebrate spring with a house and garden tour throughout the commonwealth. Each year is special, showcasing beautiful gardens, spectacular flower arrangements, noteworthy architecture and gracious interiors. This year, the Garden Club of Virginia turns 100. We invite you to help us celebrate with an exceptional week of exploring Virginia’s treasures.

Historic Garden Week proceeds are used to fund the mission of GCV. With your support, we have restored more than 50 historic landscapes throughout Virginia. We have provided educational opportunities to more than 30 graduate students in landscape architecture. And finally, you have made it possible for us to award our Centennial gift to the commonwealth, $500,000 to Virginia State Parks, places where flora, fauna and cultural resources are maintained for future generations. Twenty-nine state parks have received grants enabling them to create pollinator gardens, restore miles of trails, build children’s discovery centers, as well as provide young people the ability to learn and work in the natural world through participation in the Youth Conservation Corps program. As you travel the state, please take time to visit our restoration sites and view our projects at Virginia State Parks. For a map of these locations, see pages 6 and 7.

Historic Garden Week would not be possible without the generosity of the homeowners who open their doors to us, the more than 3,400 members of the GCV who give tirelessly of their time and talents, the many volunteers and the sponsors who all work together to make this unique event successful.

In 1920, our founders realized that conservation of our natural resources, preservation of our landscapes and the beautification of Virginia was important. Today, we continue to build on those beliefs as we enter into our next 100 years. We are grateful to you for your support.

Jean E. Gilpin
President
Garden Club of Virginia

Historic Garden Week in Virginia is held annually.
Dates for 2021 are April 17-24. Dates for 2022 are April 23-30.
TOUR ROUTES
Properties may be visited in any order, but some tours suggest routes. That information is included in the Directions of individual sections. Iconic to the country’s largest house and garden tour, the “green arrow” signs, along with traditional signage, are used throughout tour routes. Follow the green arrows.

PARKING
Please check individual tour descriptions. Many neighborhoods cannot accommodate the additional traffic associated with tours. In these cases, use designated parking areas or provided shuttles. Do not block residential driveways.

ACCESSIBILITY
These properties are mostly private homes and are therefore not always accessible to those using wheelchairs or walkers. Additional accommodations may be available to visitors who are visually or hearing impaired with advance notice and to the extent that they do not impose an undue hardship. Service animals are allowed.

TOURING NOTES
As a courtesy to homeowners, visitors are requested to avoid wearing shoes that could damage flooring. For your comfort and safety, please wear flat walking shoes, and watch for steps and uneven surfaces as you visit homes and gardens.

As a safeguard against the spread of boxwood blight, please avoid contact with all boxwood while on tour properties.

TICKETS
Advance tickets are available at numerous local outlets listed by tour, or online at www.vagardenweek.org. No refunds for advance ticket purchases.

Online ticket sales close 10 a.m. the day of each individual tour date.

Tickets can also be purchased on the day of tours. Generally, these must be purchased with cash or check. Many tours offer credit card purchasing on tour days. Typically, this service is available at individual tour headquarters.

Tours are held rain or shine, except for tours that are inaccessible due to weather conditions.

PHOTOGRAPHY
No interior photography or sketching. Photography of any kind, including via cellphone, is prohibited within the houses and some tours prohibit exterior photography as well.

FACILITIES
There are no public restrooms in the homes.

PETS
Pets (except service animals) are not permitted.

NO SMOKING, STROLLERS, BACKPACKS, ETC.
Be mindful of your surroundings, no items that could bump fellow visitors or private property are allowed into the houses.

CHILDREN
Children 17 years of age and under must be accompanied at all times by a parent or other responsible adult. Tours are produced and hosted by 47 different member clubs of the Garden Club of Virginia. Generally, student tickets are half of the ticket cost, and young children are free. While most tours are not geared towards young visitors, some are more conducive than others. If you are planning on bringing a guest under the age of 18, please call the Tour Chair for ticket pricing.

DISCLAIMER
Information about tour properties is provided by homeowners and is accurate to the best of our knowledge. Being featured on a tour is not an endorsement by the Garden Club of Virginia of the homeowner’s political views, religious affiliations, or other opinions or practices. Homes and gardens are chosen solely for their visual appeal and historic or design interest.

GCV POLICIES
The Garden Club of Virginia, its member clubs and owners of properties on Historic Garden Week tours are not responsible for accidents occurring on the tours.

It is also a policy of the Garden Club of Virginia and Historic Garden Week not to allow the transportation of tour visitors using golf carts, and not to allow the use of “bootties” in homes on tour.

LET US INTRODUCE YOU TO THE most BEAUTIFUL PRIVATE HOMES AND GARDENS IN VIRGINIA THIS SPRING.

Whether it’s the inspiring gardens, the interior design and architecture, the history, or the Instagram-worthy flower arrangements created by Garden Club of Virginia (GCV) members, with 29 tours to choose from, and special GCV Centennial opportunities, Historic Garden Week in Virginia offers something for everyone. The only statewide house & garden tour in the nation, this annual springtime ritual includes access to 156 private homes and gardens in communities both large and small, many open for the very first time to the public.

There are numerous ways to organize your Historic Garden Week trip. To plan by region or day of the week, please reference the fold-out map at the end of the Guidebook. If you would rather plan by type of tour, we hope this list, new for 2020, is helpful.

TOUR PROCEEDS FUND

• The restoration and preservation of nearly 50 of Virginia’s historic public gardens and landscapes
• A landscape architecture research fellowship program
• A Centennial project with Virginia State Parks

Did you know that you are helping us research and restore iconic places in Virginia by attending a tour during Historic Garden Week?

Proceeds support the efforts of the Garden Club of Virginia as it works with experts across our commonwealth. Thank you for your help.

All projects on the map are referenced in their tour section inside this guidebook. Most are open for Historic Garden Week.

A tradition since 1929, Historic Garden Week draws nearly 26,000 visitors each year to private homes and gardens in cities and towns across Virginia each spring.

SATURDAY-MONDAY, APRIL 18-20, 2020, 10 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

Enjoy spectacular scenery against the backdrop of the Blue Ridge Mountains, and the history and culture of Charlottesville. On Saturday, visit Morven, built in 1820 and featuring formal and cutting gardens renovated by Annette Hoyt Flanders in the 1930s. Tulips, phlox, lilacs, viburnum, and deutzia, among other spring blooming shrubs and perennials, fill a series of distinct garden rooms. Notable trees include a pair of Osage orange trees, the state champion Chinese chestnut, and a Dove tree. Morven was a charter property open for the first Historic Garden Week in Virginia in 1929, and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and on the Virginia Landmarks Register.

SUNDAY, APRIL 18
Morven House and Gardens

The three-story brick manor house at Morven was built c.1820 in the late Georgian/Federal style by builder Martin Thacker for David Higginbotham, a local merchant. Its 19th-century ambience remains even after 20th-century additions and interior renovations. The land was part of the original 1730 Carter family land grant and was known to Thomas Jefferson as “Indian Camp,” which he purchased for his “adaptive sort” Col. William Short in 1795, who in turn sold Morven to David Higginbotham in 1813. The last private owner, the late John Kluge, gave the farm to the University of Virginia Foundation in 2001. Extraordinary grounds feature the formal and cutting gardens renovated by Annette Hoyt Flanders in the 1930s. Tulips, phlox, lilacs, viburnum, and deutzia, among other spring blooming shrubs and perennials, fill a series of distinct garden rooms. Notable trees include a pair of Osage orange trees, the state champion Chinese chestnut, and a Dove tree. Morven was a charter property open for the first Historic Garden Week in Virginia in 1929, and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and on the Virginia Landmarks Register.

SATURDAY, APRIL 19
Miller School of Albemarle, 1000 Samuel Miller Loop

Designed in the mid-19th century by Albert Lybrock, the Miller School welcomed female students in 1881, making it one of the earliest co-educational boarding schools in the country. The focal point of the 1,600-acre campus, the affectionately-named “Old Main,” is a Victorian Gothic style building. Old Main is registered as a Virginia Historic Landmark. Completed in 1882, four years after the construction of this building, the school’s Caton Hall added a new Victorian Gothic landmark to its campus. The building is complete with an iconic bell tower, adding another layer of dimension to the red brick and stark granite exterior. Designed and completed with Caton Hall, the three-story president’s house offers 18-foot ceilings on the first floor of the house with a modified four-over-four room arrangement accessed from a central foyer. The house is decorated with 19th-century pastoral oil paintings. The center foyer displays original decorative metalwork. Visitors will have access to the first level of the president’s house. The grounds include an oval lawn, playing fields and landscaped lawns. A hydroponic produce program is underway and student-run garden is located near the Edison Powerhouse. Last opened for Historic Garden Week in 1990.

Shuttle Tour Only
Parking at the base of Pippin Hill Vineyard, 5022 Plank Road, North Garden 22959
Direct your GPS system to the address for Pippin Hill Vineyard above. Before reaching the vineyard, cars will be directed to a designated parking area in order to board the Historic Garden Week Shuttle to the Bundoran Neighborhood homes. Please do not park at the vineyard tasting room; the shuttle bus will not pick up at this location. The shuttle bus will take guests to three distinctive private homes in the farm-land neighborhood of Bundoran, located south of Charlottesville. Private homes include: Bramley Farm, the Tillman House and the original Bundoran Farm House. This is exclusively a shuttle tour and no private cars will be permitted to drive to or drop off at the homes on tour. Shuttles available from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Last shuttle will depart from parking tent at 4 p.m.

Bramley Farm
With spectacular views of mountains, meadows and vineyards, Bramley Farm is a visual delight. The new residence, barn and enclosed gardens evoke the character of a traditional hunt country property through extensive use of natural stone and brick, combined with white clapboard and board-and-batten siding. The interior of the home features an open plan between the kitchen and great room, large kitchen pantry and butler’s pantry, formal dining room and covered terrace with outdoor cooking island and pizza oven. The enclosed kitchen garden has a central pavilion with matching pergolas for outdoor entertaining, a custom-made Victorian greenhouse, brick chicken coop with attached octagonal aviary, large compost bins and two food gardens. The classic barn has solar panels on the roof, matched with a geothermal heat pump to condition the owners’ collection of classic Porsche and Mercedes-Benz cars. The food gardens and trellised vines designed to be maintained without reliance on fossil-fuel-based equipment, and produce vegetables, herbs, fruits and berries with the help of nearby bee hives. House, barn and grounds will be open.

Tillman Gardens
This traditional farm cottage draws its character from historic Southern architecture with deep porches, French doors and columns. The owners designed their barn by modeling it after an older outbuilding found at the foot of the hill. The latest structure added was the English made greenhouse, where radiant heat keeps the Brugmansias and citrus trees warm in winter. Stone walls on both sides of the house are both decorative and functional. The house was built in a pasture that originally contained few trees and offered little shade. The owners added more than 40 native trees, selecting them so they would thrive in hot, dry conditions, and an additional seven other trees, and placed them close to the woods that edge their property. Once established, they buffer the foundation plantings, flowerbeds, and more young trees. Raised beds to the left of the greenhouse are for growing vegetables. In another bed, blueberry bushes produce enough berries to feed the family for a year. To the right of the barn is a shade garden with a variety of perennials that need only dappled sunlight. Native trees include Halesia Carolina (Carolina Silverbell), Franklinia altamaha (Franklin Tree) and Aesculus flava (Yellow Buckeye). There are many native shrubs and perennials. In April highlights are Mertensia, Jeffersonia diphylla and Uvula perfoliata.

Upper Bundoran
Upper Bundoran, a Classic Georgian Revival home situated on 55 acres, was built in 1952 by Frederic William Scott, Jr., and Elizabeth Pinkerton Scott. Mrs. Scott was an active member of Albermarle Garden Club; she planted many of the property’s majestic trees, which are labeled with their common and botanical names. The current owners bought the home in 2017. Visitors will appreciate commanding hilltop views from almost every window of this six-bedroom home. Guests are invited to walk through the entrance foyer to the back terrace, observing a grand stairwell, high ceilings, and gourmet kitchen. Original to the house are the red oak floors. The new guest house is connected to the main house by a courtyard with a central fountain and an arbor-covered patio. The vegetable garden boasts seasonal plantings. A French inspired walled courtyard with a fishpond and espaliered wisteria is a serene outdoor space. A highlight is the boxwood parterre, a formal garden with a fountain as the centerpiece. Mature trees gracing the gardens include a very large Celtis occidentalis, a Hackberry that provides abundant food for birds, and two mature Cunninghamia lanceolata, China Firs. Near the Cunninghamia is a mature Calycanthus floridus, Carolina Allspice. Beyond the boxwoods are perennial beds and a small orchard. Last opened for Historic Garden Week in 1984.

University of Virginia, Pavilion Gardens
Your tour ticket helps support this site and other Garden Club of Virginia restoration gardens.

MONDAY, APRIL 20 (No charge)
University of Virginia Pavilion Homes, Serpentine Gardens and the President’s Home at Carr’s Hill
Founded by Thomas Jefferson and established in 1819, the University of Virginia is the only American university designated as a World Heritage site. Thomas Jefferson’s Academical Village, which is on the National Register of Historic Places and the Virginia Landmarks Register, is also designated a National Historic Landmark.

Pavilion Gardens
Open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Garden Club of Virginia restored the University’s Pavilion Gardens and their surrounding serpentine walls with proceeds from Historic Garden Week, beginning with the West Pavilion gardens in 1947. The serpentine walls were part of Jefferson’s Academical Village. The Garden Club of Virginia hired noted Colonial Williamsburg landscape architects Alden Hopkins and Donald Parker to design the Colonial Revival gardens. The West Pavilion Gardens were restored between 1947 and 1953 and the East Lawn between 1960 and 1965. Research on the history of the gardens is currently underway. Work in the gardens continues to be supported by the Garden Club of Virginia. Tours of the gardens, conducted at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., start at the steps of the Rotunda facing the Lawn. The Mary and David Harrison Institute for American History, Literature, and Culture and the Albert and Shirley Small Special Collections Library. Open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. No admission charge. Special Presentation in the Auditorium at 2 p.m. “The Making of the UVA Memorial to Enslaved Laborers” will include a documentary film chronicling the creation of the Memorial. The film includes footage of the public meetings and discussions where the design ideas emerged, interviews with the designers working on the project, and the fabrication and construction process involved in bringing the “Freedom Ring” from the drawing board to the ground. Following the film, a panel discussion moderated by University Landscape Architect Mary Hughes will explore lesser known aspects of the Memorial’s backstory, such as advocacy, public engagement, archival research, and landscape design. Books and manuscripts from UVA Special Collections related to the history of slavery at the university will be on display 30 minutes before and after the presentation. For further information about the University of Virginia Library, library.virginia.edu.

Carr’s Hill
Open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Located on the hill above the corner of Rugby Road and University Avenue, Carr’s Hill has been home to nine university presidents and their families and is currently occupied by University President James E. Ryan and his family. In 2009, the university celebrated the centennial of Carr’s Hill, designed as the president’s residence by the New York architecture firm McKim, Mead and White. Listed on the National Register of Historic Places, the house was part of the late 1890s -1900s building campaign that also included Cabell, Souss, Cocke and Garrett Halls and the North Portico and Rotunda interior. Please note: Carr’s Hill is a private home and only certain areas are open during Historic Garden Week.

Morea Garden and Arboretum
Located on Sprigg Lane, off Emmet Street just north of Alumni Hall, the Morea Garden features a special selection of shrubs and trees surrounding a historic Federal period home. The house is named after the mulberries cultivated for experiments with silkworms. Morea was built by John Patten Emmet, one of the first professors chosen by Jefferson for the University. There are large old trees and a landscaped botanical collection. Morea was the runner-up for the Garden Club of Virginia’s Common Wealth Award in 2005 and 2006. Self-guided tours are limited to the gardens.

GEORGE WASHINGTON’S MOUNT VERNON

History in bloom
Old Town Alexandria

SATURDAY, APRIL 18, 2020, 10 A.M. TO 4 P.M.

Overlooking the Potomac with views of our nation’s capital, Old Town Alexandria radiates charm while safeguarding its rich historic roots. Established in 1749, Alexandria was a major seaport prior to the Revolutionary War, occupied by Union Troops during the Civil War, and a torpedo production site during World War II. In 1946, Alexandria was the third city in the country to establish a historic district to preserve its architectural heritage. This easy walking tour includes private homes and secluded gardens nestled along the tree-lined streets of the Historic District, refreshments at the Old Presbyterian Meeting House, and a marketplace at the Athenaeum. Boutique shopping and fine dining are just steps away. What’s more, the tour ticket allows access to several nearby historic gardens and properties, including the Carlyle House and Garden Club of Virginia restoration projects, George Washington's Mount Vernon Estate and Gardens, and Green Spring Gardens.

HOSTED BY HUNTING CREEK GARDEN CLUB AND THE GARDEN CLUB OF ALEXANDRIA

TICKET INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE FOLLOWING 6 PRIVATE HOMES AND GARDENS, REFRESHMENTS AT 316 SOUTH ROYAL STREET AND 6 NEARBY HISTORIC PROPERTIES:

► 226 South Lee Street
This freestanding, six-room, 2½-story clapboard home is an example of Old Town’s vernacular architecture. Such homes express a distinctive regional cultural heritage, having not been designed, but rather constructed through traditional building methods, using local materials and builders. This home was built in 1800 and originally consisted of two rooms over two rooms. Unique to this home is its fully detached nature which allows for light and air from all sides. Its style is typical of a successful Alexandria workman’s home. The former owners included a rifleman, a baker, a printer, and a driver. Renovations made in 1997 accommodate modern needs, adding more light and air through the addition of windows to the southern façade. The current decor skillfully blends old and new, which is so distinctive in many of Old Town’s interiors. Of special note are the original floors and the historic living room mantel. Jackie Maher, owner.

► 216 Wolfe Street
This 2½-story brick townhome has its main entrance on the side, an unusual feature for houses in Old Town. Originally, the house had two rooms with fireplaces on each of the first and second floors plus an unfinished attic reached by a ladder. It was constructed as a semi-detached home with 400 South Fairfax as its “twin,” and the two properties still share two large chimney structures. The exact date of construction is unknown, but records show it was likely between 1799 and 1819. Three of the home’s original fireplaces remain, all in working order, including a “Rumford” in the front parlor. This type of fireplace is much shallower than the others, and was designed by Sir Benjamin Thompson, Count Rumford, to project more heat than a traditional fireplace. Since purchasing the property in 1979, the current owners have updated the kitchen, expanded the third floor, partially finished the basement, and redesigned the garden. Thirty years in the U.S. Foreign Service has resulted in a plethora of art and furniture from Southeast Asia and Africa. Of particular note is the slit drum in the garden carved from a single tree trunk. Barbara and Robert Pringle, owners.

► The Cary-Fielder House
215 Wolfe Street
This two-story, semi-detached brick townhome has a unique siting for the area. It sits back off the street, allowing for light, air, and lovely gardens on three sides. During the 1794 auction of lots that became the nucleus of the City of Alexandria, this lot was purchased by the Honorary Lord Mayor William Ramsay. Two years later it was sold to Joseph Cary, friend of George Washington. In 1802, the property was for sale again with a single brick house believed to be 213 Wolfe. It wasn’t until 1842 that George Swain, a local builder, constructed the current structure. Over the years, three additions have been made, one to the front and two to the rear. Today’s façade dates back to 1842 as well. This 1831 Greek Revival building includes an art gallery. Of particular note is the front parlor. This type of fireplace is typical of a successful Alexandria workman’s home. The former owners included a rifleman, a baker, a printer, and a driver. from the mid 19th century. A root cellar contains the remains of an early arched fireplace. A brick wall with iron gate encloses the patios with their lush plantings and shade trees. The current owner has renovated the kitchen and master bath and added period touches. The owner's love of primitive furniture from the 1860s is evident throughout.

611 South Fairfax Street

In 1830, a simple dwelling was constructed on the site of what is now a vastly expanded home. The original clapboard structure consisted of two rooms over two rooms. The first owner was a stonemason working on the construction of the George Washington Monument. In 1870, a side addition was constructed which now contains the kitchen. It was probably during that renovation that the façade was “Victorianized.” It wasn’t until the 1950s that an enclosed porch was added. During the same time, like many houses in Old Town, it became a boarding house with each boarder having a bedroom, but sharing the kitchen. By the 1960s, the home had sold again and a major expansion took place. Over the past 16 years, the owners have combined the porch and kitchen and added a rear addition to accommodate a first floor bath and laundry room. The original coal fireplace in the front room has a locally sourced stone surround. An extensive art collection features both Realist and Impressionist artists of this century including works by Elisabeth Estivelet and Pedro Fraille.

Old Town Alexandria
HOSTED BY HUNTING CREEK GARDEN CLUB AND THE GARDEN CLUB OF ALEXANDRIA

Virginia’s only Beatrix Farrand garden, which was recently restored by the Garden Club of Virginia. In 1784, gentleman freeholder John Moss built a brick house on several hundred acres of farmland. In 1942, young power couple Michael and Belinda Straight bought the house and 33 acres and engaged Farrand to design a simple garden room behind the house: a spacious lawn enclosed by a boxwood crescent with a stone retaining wall. The Garden Club of Virginia restored the stone wall, rejuvenated the boxwoods, and redesigned a more recently-installed perennial bed to reflect Farrand’s signature plant choices. In 1970, the Straights deeded their house and 18 acres to the Fairfax County Park Authority. fairfaxcounty.gov/parks/greenspring.

Gunston Hall
15 mi. south of Alexandria off U.S. Rt. 1 on Rt. 242.
This 550-acre National Historic Landmark was the home of George Mason, author of The Virginia Declaration of Rights. The Potomac River is viewed from the historic boxwood garden. During April the conceptual plan for the restoration of the river-side garden will be on display. While not a current restoration project of the Garden Club of Virginia, the GCV assisted Gunston Hall with landscaping work from 1949-53. gunstonhall.org.

There also is a manor house featuring botanically themed art. ahsgardening.org.

George Washington’s Mount Vernon
Eight miles south of Alexandria on the George Washington Memorial Pkwy, and situated on the Potomac River lies the home of George and Martha Washington. From the end of the American Revolution in 1783 to his election to the presidency in 1789, Washington replaced outbuildings, reshaped gardens, created new lawns, planted trees and even realigned roads and lanes. With funding from Historic Garden Week, the Garden Club of Virginia has helped to restore Mount Vernon’s bowling green, one of the major landscape features on this vast plantation. Old Ridge Road, an original rolling road dating from the early 1700s, provides access to the Piedmont region of Hanover County. Located 20 miles north of Richmond, the area remains rural, featuring vistas of farms, fields, forests, and rocky streams in the forks of the Pamunkey River. Visitors will enjoy access to an 18th century church and grounds, three 19th century homes with gardens, and a contemporary property with house and the Pamunkey River. Visitors will enjoy access to an 18th century church and grounds, three 19th century homes with gardens, and a contemporary property with gardens.

The Fork Church
12566 Old Ridge Road

With deep roots in the Colonial history of Hanover County, this church traces its beginnings to St. Martin’s Parish, which was carved from the western reaches of St. Paul’s Parish in 1726. Like all Anglican parishes in Colonial America, St. Martin’s Parish was under the oversight of the Bishop of London and may have been named after St. Martin-in-the-Fields in Trafalgar Square, which was being rebuilt at the time. Within the new parish was a wooden frame structure called the “chapel in the forks,” referencing the North and South Anna Rivers, tributaries in the fork of the Pamunkey River. Around 1735, this chapel was replaced by the current brick building. After the Revolutionary War, the Fork Church weathered the Commonwealth’s turn against its formerly established denomination. Under the Bishop of the Diocese of Virginia in the newly organized Episcopal Church, the interior of Fork Church was renovated in 1835 to reflect the sensibilities of the Second Great Awakening. Box pews became bench pews and the pulpit was moved to overshadow the altar table as the centerpiece of liturgical furniture. This later change was reversed in 1913, providing an example of how a living faith community grows and adapts. Listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Church Quarter
12432 Old Ridge Road

Listed on both the Virginia Landmarks Register and the National Register of Historic Places, Church Quarter is an 1840s log cabin in western Hanover. As early as 1822, the tract of land was referred to as “Church Quarter” and was probably built by Sarah Thornton by 1844. Rarely seen in Virginia today, the story-and-a-half building is a traditional log and chink structure with exterior end chimneys. On July 16, 1862, Gen. Stonewall Jackson and his staff stopped here for water on their route from Richmond to Gordonsville. About 1885, a single-story, two-room rear wing was added, followed by the addition of a shed roof kitchen. The date on the cast iron sink in this room is 1921. Of special interest is the reconstructed orangery. The seven-course American-bond brickwork on the surviving wall suggests a late 19th or early 20th century construction date. Sunlight would pass through the windowed roof, heating marble on the floor. This technique raised the temperature to sustain fragile plants over the winter.

Scotchtown Chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, owner.

Hanover Academy
12184 Old Ridge Road

Sitting on a knoll overlooking rolling fields, Hanover Academy is a Georgian two-story frame home built in 1821. The property is named for the boarding school for young men that operated on this site from 1849 to 1889 as a preparatory school for the University of Virginia. Louis Minor Coleman, the academy’s headmaster, was Professor of Latin at the University. His portrait graces the mantel in the parlor today. During the Civil War, Hanover Academy students served in a C.S.A. artillery unit. The school became a hospital known for its cleanliness and good patient outcomes for the time. The Academy was sold in 1859 to Hillary Pollard Jones, who continued to operate the school until its closing in 1889. Students from as far as New York and Louisiana attended the school. Two original student buildings remain intact on the site. The current owners have done extensive preservation and updating of the property. In 2003 a family room and kitchen were added, followed by a pool area and gardens, in 2005. A master bedroom suite was completed in 2014. Anne King and Chuck Magnant, owners.

Janeway, 11538 Old Ridge Road

On November 28, 1867, Nathaniel Burwell Cooke of The Vineyard, Clarke County, married Jane Mercer Winston, daughter of Edmond Winston of Woodgrove, Hanover County. They built Janeway on property partitioned from the western side of Woodgrove, and lived and farmed there from 1868 until April 30, 1918, when they both succumbed to influenza. Generational ownership of the farm has passed to their daughter, granddaughter, and great grandsons. The house, which stands in a setting of fine old trees and shrubs, features the original rectangular layout of two floors over an English basement. It is furnished with family heirlooms, including an extensive library. Dependencies include a kitchen, smokehouse and ash house. Timbers in the kitchen are hand hewn and assembled with wooden dowels. Many 19th century utensils are still in place. Alterations made in 1937 included the addition of the east and west wings, modern bathrooms and kitchen. Substantial restoration work was done in the 1960s along with the addition of a backyard pool and pond. Alterations completed in 2000 added functional living areas, a second staircase, and outdoor living spaces while maintaining the fabric and ambiance of the original house.

Scott and Linda Macdonald, current family stewards.

15143 Locust Level Drive
This Georgian Revival house with outbuildings and gardens was inspired by the George Wythe House and grounds in Colonial Williamsburg. Built in 2004, the house reflects the owners’ love of 18th century architecture, formal gardens and furniture. Various outbuildings have been added over the years, including a woodworking shop, garden house, smokehouse shed, and equipment barn. The house is situated on 20 acres that was originally an open corn field barren of all trees with the exception of surrounding woodlands. The owners have added more than 400 trees and shrubs including boxwoods, hollies, crepe myrtles and magnolias, as well as a formal garden behind the garden house. The house is furnished primarily with reproductions of 18th century American furniture hand crafted over a 30-year period by the owner, who was taught by his father, a cabinetmaker specializing in the reproduction and repair of 18th century furniture. Several of his father’s pieces are also on display.

Susan and Terry Davis, owners.

Clarke County

SATURDAY, APRIL 25, 2020, 10 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

Take a step back in time on this tour in Historic Clarke County, nestled in the Shenandoah Valley and close to the nation’s capital. The picturesque area consists mostly of horse and agricultural farms with roots back to the Revolutionary and Civil Wars. Many of the farms are in conservation easement, preserving the county’s rural character beloved by residents and visitors. Featured homes and gardens date from the 18th through the 20th centuries. Highlights include formal gardens, a Japanese garden, a restored brick stable (one of the only four families have lived at Clay Hill since its construction. It served as the location for Clay Hill Academy from the 1860s to 1906. The home retains many of its original features and is furnished with an eclectic mix of English and American antiques. The property underwent an extensive renovation in 2008, with the addition of a kitchen wing, formal Italianate boxwood parterre gardens and a custom made 19th century style glass conservatory that houses the owners’ collection of orchids, palms and cycads. Extensive perennial and vegetable gardens wind their way through stone walls built by Hessian soldiers 200 years ago. Attractive grounds include an original ice house, a chicken cloister and house, as well as an orangery. Elizabeth Locke and John Staelin, owners.

Tuleyries
136 Tuleyries Lane, Boyce

The Tuleyries, on the National Register of Historic Places, was built by Col. Joseph Tuley, Jr. from 1830-1834. The antebellum-style house features a two-story columned portico with double window fanlights and a domed entrance hall leading to a sweeping spiral staircase. The grand-scale rooms have handcrafted woodwork, rare elliptical columns and some have magnificent Winchester fireplace mantels. The Tuleyries’ name was a play on Tuley’s own name and the Tuileries, a Parisian palace and garden. It was a working farm; many of its original (mostly brick) outbuildings are still intact, including a forge, stable, dairy, and carriage, seed, smoke and ice houses. The estate has been owned by two extended families, the Tuley-Boyces and Blandy-Wilsons. After Col. Tuley’s death and following the Civil War, the property was sold to his niece, Mrs. Upton Boyce. Upon her death in 1903, The Tuleyries was sold to Graham Blandy, a New York financier and nephew by marriage to Andrew Carnegie. Blandy restored the estate and acquired adjoining acreage. Having a deep appreciation of agriculture and horticulture, upon his death in 1926 he bequeathed 712 acres of the estate to the University of Virginia, creating what are now the Blandy Experimental Farm and the State Arboretum of Virginia. Orme Wilson and Edie Wilson Thompson, owners.

Thurman
3836 Lord Fairfax Highway, Berryville

The residence is named after General Thurman, a Civil War general. A memorial in his honor is situated along the driveway leading to the house. The Byrd family has owned Thurman for three generations. In 1975 the present owners decided to tear down the previous Victorian house and build a stone ranch style home incorporating many of the old doors and paneling from the original structure. A 1981 addition includes an artist’s studio, a family room and a guest bedroom. Wood beams from an old tobacco barn were used for the ceiling; stones for the fireplace were salvaged from an old house in Hedgeville, West Virginia. Of special interest are portraits of Governor Byrd, U.S. Senator Byrd and the present owner, Harry Byrd III. Mrs. Byrd is a noted artist who has contributed numerous covers to The Chronicle of the Horse. An avid horsewoman, she has bred Connemara ponies for more than 30 years. They can be seen grazing in the pastures around the home. Just five minutes away on property owned by the Byrd family is the oldest privately owned enclosed cemetery in the county. Take a right after leaving Thurman, and another right and follow signs to Blakemore Lane. It is the resting place of Lt. George Blakemore who served under General Lafayette at Valley Forge. Later he served as a judge and sheriff for Frederick County. Barbara and Harry Byrd III, owners.

Clay Hill
859 Clay Hill Road, Millwood

Built in 1816, this Federal style stone and stucco home situated on 100 acres has been featured in both Architectural Digest and Garden & Gun magazines. Originally built for a daughter of Nathaniel Burwell, only four families have lived at Clay Hill since its construction. The property underwent an extensive renovation in 2008, with the addition of a kitchen wing, formal Italianate boxwood parterre gardens and a custom made 19th century style glass conservatory that houses the owners’ collection of orchids, palms and cycads. Extensive perennial and vegetable gardens wind their way through stone walls built by Hessian soldiers 200 years ago. Attractive grounds include an original ice house, a chicken close and barn, and another right and follow signs to Clay Hill. The Byrd family has owned Thurman for three generations. In 1975 the present owners decided to tear down the previous Victorian house and build a stone ranch style home incorporating many of the old doors and paneling from the original structure. NEW TO HISTORIC GARDEN WEEK!
First time a property has been featured
The Dower House
211 Warner Washington Lane, Berryville

The house was built in 1765 by George Washington’s cousin, Warner Washington. A Greek Revival style wing was added in the 1820s. When it was enlarged again in 1928, the structure became C-shaped. The Cook family added a new kitchen, family room and garage in 1977. The house is furnished with English walnut furnishings, European paintings and Chinese porcelain. The bottom of the original 1765 hand-dug, stone-lined well, located near the residence, is still visible. A large 1830s barn was severely damaged by a Civil War cannonball but remains standing and is one of only four pre-Civil War barns remaining in Clarke County. Open for Historic Garden Week in tribute to Beth Cook, wife, mother and member of the Winchester-Clarke Garden Club, who loved the home and its garden. She was the inspiration for the property’s Japanese Garden, designed as a metaphor of rain falling in the mountains, cascading down to the sea, thus repeating the cycle of life. It features more than 50 Japanese Black pines, Umbrella Pines, Siberian Spruces, bamboos, liriope, hostas and peonies. Pastures are home to Mr. Cook’s rare Cleveland Bay horses, a critically endangered British breed. Formerly used as carriage and work horses, they are now bred to be sport horses. Mr. Peter Cook, owner.

PLACEs OF INTEREST

Belle Grove Plantation
336 Belle Grove Rd., Middletown.
Built by Major Isaac Hite and his wife Nelly Madison Hite, sister of President James Madison, in 1797. The Jefferson influenced manor house is constructed of dressed stone and overlooks the site of the Civil War 1864 Battle of Cedar Creek. Owned by the National Trust for Historic Preservation, it continues to be a Garden Club of Virginia Restoration project. bellegrove.org

Long Branch
Long Branch Ln., Boyce
The 1812 Federal manor house was updated in 1840 to a Georgian Revival style, boasting a near 360-degree mountain view, with more than 400 acres in conservation easement and a formal garden dedicated to British floral designer Sheila MacQueen. visitlongbranch.org

Blandy Experimental Farm and the State Arboretum
400 Blandy Farm Ln., Boyce
Left in a bequest to the University of Virginia in 1926, Blandy’s 700 acres were originally part of a larger historic antebellum estate named the Tuleyries. The State Arboretum of Virginia is nestled on 172 acres within this larger property and is anchored by a large brick structure built in 1825. Expanded in 1945, this structure was subsequently used to house faculty and to provide laboratory space for the University of Virginia. Numerous trails meander through the property which contain 5,000 different varieties of trees and shrubs. Highlights include a ginko grove that includes 300 trees, a Cedar of Lebanon allee, an herbaceous garden, a native plant trail as well as the American Boxwood Society’s Memorial Garden, home to 162 varieties of boxwood. A Garden Club of Virginia Restoration site, Dogwood Lane and its original stone walls were rebuilt in 2004 along a road that once led from the manor house to the farm using proceeds from Historic Garden Week tours. blandyvirginia.edu

Burwell-Morgan Mill
15 Tannery Ln., Millwood
A National Register Historic Landmark and one of the oldest, most original operational mills in the county. In the early 1780s General Daniel Morgan, a Revolutionary War hero joined efforts with Colonel Nathaniel Burwell of Carter Hall to build this water powered mill in an area that would become Millwood. Continuously operated from 1785 to 1943 and now restored as a working mill grinding local grains. Landscape restored by the Garden Club of Virginia in 2016 with funds raised through Historic Garden Week. burwellmorganmill.org

The Museum of the Shenandoah Valley
901 Amherst St., Winchester
Focuses on the art of the Shenandoah Valley, it was designed by Michael Graves. Surrounded by six acres of landscaped gardens including a formal garden, Asian inspired gardens, a rose garden, vegetable garden and boxwood knot gardens. Some of the newly designed 90-acre art park and trails will be open during Historic Garden Week. themsv.org

Barns of Rose Hill
95 Chalmers St., Berryville
A non-profit performing arts venue, community center, an art gallery, and tourist information center located in historic downtown Berryville. Formerly two historic dairy barns from the early twentieth century that have been restored and renovated into one building, offering acoustic engineering and modern amenities. barnsforosehill.org

Connected for Life

Home is not a place ... it’s a feeling.

Our residents at Shenandoah Valley Westminster-Canterbury find that once relieved of the burden of home maintenance and an overabundance of “stuff,” they are more relaxed, happier, less stressed, and therefore, healthier. We believe that’s why we have residents who are living to be 100 years young, and beyond. Moving to a retirement community is a huge decision. Why not take the first step and call us to arrange a tour. Who knows, you might just get a feeling that SVWC should be your next home!

Southside was known as a premier tobacco growing area in Virginia. This tour features rustic tobacco barns, as well as chic and modern barn entertainment venues. The historic barns are filled with references to the area’s past while another property features a restored cabin, as well as a newly built lodge and barn. Nearby, visitors will enjoy a home with relaxing gardens and fountains. A restoration site of the Garden Club of Virginia using funds from past Historic Garden Week tours, the Danville Museum of Fine Arts & History at the Sutherlin Mansion will complement the theme of the tour with a tobacco exhibition that includes prints by a local artist.

NEW TO HISTORIC GARDEN WEEK!
First time a property has been featured
Rescued tobacco barns and pack houses in Pittsylvania County reflect the tobacco heritage of Southern Virginia. In 2009 these barns were placed on the list of Most Endangered Historic Places by Preservation Virginia, the statewide nonprofit organization dedicated to making Virginia’s communities and historic places of memory stronger, more vital and economically sustainable through preservation, education and advocacy. Their restoration was financed by the JTI Tobacco Barns Mini Grant Repair Project. Several of the barns are painted with “Barn Quilts,” mostly square murals which replicate traditional fabric quilts. The unusual combination of architecture and art brighten the landscape on this section of your tour through scenic tobacco country.

TICKET INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE FOLLOWING 8 SITES:

The Bowman Barn, 300 Bowman Drive, Dry Fork

Originally a four-room wood-fired curing barn built around 1871, it was part of the Harper farm until 2016 when it was sold to the current owners. The barn has been completely restored and is an excellent example of the type of structure that was used to cure tobacco at the time. Brenda and Ken Bowman, owners.

Blair Pack Barn and Museum, 1020 Moorefield Bridge Road

Repaired to the barn built in the mid-1800s included replacing deteriorated board and batten siding, repairing the roof, the stone foundation, and the doors and windows. The chinking and daubing were also included in the restoration. Pack barns were used in the next step to prepare tobacco for market after it was cured. Katherine Blair, owner.

Bray Barn, 3685 R&L Smith Drive

Repairs to the barn built in the mid-1800s included replacing deteriorated board and batten siding, repairing the roof, the stone foundation, and the front foundation stones. An Ohio Star barn quilt block adorns the structure. Tammy and Joey Bray, owners.

Mimi’s Barn, 728 Violet Lenora Way

This pack house is more than 100 years old and was used to prepare tobacco for market. Tobacco was moved from the curing barn to the cellar of a “packing house” to keep moisture in the leaves. Then it was hand tied in bundles, graded for quality and prepared for market. This barn displays the Maple Leaf quilt block. Sandra and Jeffery Seamster Adams, owners.

2175 Hunting Hill Road

This Craftsman style house is located in a neighborhood built 13 years ago by a member of the owners’ family. Mrs. Wood added many of her own touches including two porches, one of which is screened in, and the design of the woodwork in the kitchen. She also planned the butler’s pantry, which includes built-in storage units that house her collection of linens and tabletopware. State-of-the-art appliances accent this space for entertaining the couple’s many guests. A silent “butler” in the pantry allows popcorn and other snacks to be sent directly to the theater room above. The rooms are decorated with soft colors, creating an atmosphere of tranquility. Outside, the grounds include waterfalls flowing into a saltwater pond that doubles as a small swimming pool. A brook with a bridge leads to an area that contains an arbor with a swing, and another space with a fire pit. The garden was professionally designed and installed. Evergreens provide structure, with perennials and annuals adding seasonal interest. Because the owners enjoy sharing their home and garden with friends and family, it is designed with many indoor and outdoor locations to entertain guests. Dianne and Bill Wood, owners.

Atkinson Barn and Lodge at 777 Atkinson Road, and the Cabin at 777 Hunting Hills Road

Nestled in the countryside with expansive views, this property consists of hundreds of acres of well-manicured fields, trails, woodlands, streams, and six ponds, as well as three structures open for touring. The barn was constructed in 2016 using reclaimed wood beams from both the American Tobacco Company and Dan River Cotton Mills. It boasts three gas fireplaces with stone hearths and massive mantels. Located only steps away, the lodge has an open floor plan including an enormous stone hearth, a large granite kitchen island and breakfast area. The three-bedroom retreat contains indoor and outdoor areas to enjoy the views. The original cabin on the Atkinson Farm has a full kitchen and bar, a wood-burning stone fireplace, as well as built-in bunk beds in the rear glass porch. A jasmine covered arbor and fire pit add to the ambience.

Averett University — Main Hall and Parlor, and the Frith Fine Arts Center, 420 West Main Street

Founded in 1859 as Union Female College, a two-year school for women, Averett University has expanded in the 160 years since its founding and is now a four-year co-educational institution offering more than 30 majors, minors, and special programs, as well as six graduate degrees. Historic Main Hall, which was constructed in 1910 at the cost of $40,670, recently underwent a $5.3-million renovation of its third and fourth floors and the penthouse. Located near the main entrance, one of the rooms that was in use during its time as an all-female college has been restored as a welcoming parlor for students and visitors. Additionally, the fine arts center, originally established as Pritchett Auditorium, will also be open for touring. Named for a local doctor, Dr. C.W. Pritchett, when it was dedicated on November 15, 1959, it was expanded in 2013 to become the Violet T. Frith Fine Arts Center, named after Averett Alumna Violet T. Frith, class of 1952. The center now houses performing arts, including theatrical productions.

PLACE OF INTEREST

Danville Museum of Fine Arts & History, 975 Main St.

Located within the restored 1859 Sutherlin Mansion, the museum is a project of the Garden Club of Virginia which restored the 19th century picket fence.

CHATHAM HALL
HOSTED BY THE GARDEN CLUB OF THE EASTERN SHORE

Eastern Shore

SATURDAY, APRIL 25, 2020, 9:30 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

Come by bridge or boat to explore the homes, gardens and history on Virginia’s Eastern Shore. Bordered by the Atlantic Ocean to the east and the Chesapeake Bay to the west, the Eastern Shore peninsula is renowned for the warmth of its residents, the serenity of its waterfronts, the richness of its land and, most especially, the charm of its homes. This tour features properties in the Southern midsection of the peninsula. Perennial tour centerpiece, National Historic Landmark and recipient of a Garden Club of Virginia fellowship, Eyre Hall is an acclaimed ancestral property displaying some of the country’s oldest continuously maintained gardens.

TICKET INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE FOLLOWING 5 LOCATIONS:

Eyre Hall
3215 Eyre Hall Drive, Cheriton
Honored as a National Historic Landmark, this acclaimed ancestral property offers a rare picture of Colonial plantation life. The key to Eyre Hall’s remarkable preservation lies in its descent through eight generations of the same family. The gambrel-roofed manor was completed in 1758 by Littleton Eyre, who lavished his home with expansive spaces, superlative woodwork and handsome furnishings. Before the end of the century, Littleton’s son and grandson had, in their turn, inherited his masterwork, adding an eastern wing and laying out a grand rear garden. Happily for historians, the three early owners were succeeded by stewards who declined to gild their classic legacy with the passing fancies of later eras. Today, Eyre Hall visitors are delighted to find that the refined but soft-spoken style of its creators remains in place. The past also lives in the garden, where venerable crepe myrtles tower above parterres enclosed by ancient boxwood and set off by colorful mixed borders. On the west, the recently stabilized remaining walls of an early orangery add a hint of romance to the garden scene. Beyond the house and garden, broad stretches of open fields and long views over Cherrystone Creek complete the placid panorama awaiting visitors to this perennial centerpiece of the Eastern Shore tour. H. Furlong Baldwin, owner.

Barrier Islands Center
7295 Young St, Machipongo
Designated a Virginia Historic Landmark and listed on the National Register of Historic Places for preserving three historic buildings, the Barrier Islands Center (BIC) sits on an 18-acre farm. Serving as a museum, BIC’s mission is to preserve and perpetuate the unique culture and history of Virginia’s Barrier Islands. Founded in 1996 and opened to visitors in 2002, BIC is the sole organization showcasing this special regional history, preserving the photos, artifacts and written accounts of those who once called Virginia’s barrier islands home. A crepe myrtle-lined drive leads to three historic buildings, which together comprise the most complete Almshouse complex extant in the United States. The 1890 Almshouse was the first to be restored and serves as the museum building, displaying exhibits with more than 7,500 artifacts. The 1910 African American Almshouse was restored in 2012 and serves as an education space. A rare piece of Eastern Shore history, the Quarter Kitchen has two distinct halves: the c.1725 brick structure and a c. 1840 wood-frame addition. On the grounds, highlights include brick pathways, functional and decorative plantings, a Hog Island fig orchard and a millstone exhibit.

Caserta II
14195 Caserta Road, Eastville
Overlooking Mattawoman Creek and 200 acres of farmland, the original Virginia Historic Landmark home, Caserta, was built in 1736. Later c.1830 additions by George Upshur resulted in a classic Federal period “telescope” home with the traditional Eastern Shore silhouette: big house, little house, colonnade, and kitchen. In 1975 a fire caused by a lightning strike destroyed the first home. More than 20 years later, portions of two unoccupied Accomack County homes of period-specific vintage and exact dimensions – Edmonds House c.1810 and Runnymede c.1797 – were moved over land to the original Caserta site, joined together and renovated, thus resulting in Caserta II, a typical Eastern Shore Federal period telescopic home. Bricks used in the foundation and chimneys were sourced from the Edmonds and Runnymede home sites. The interior of Caserta II is enhanced by an original wood paneled library, detailed millwork including mantels and wainscoting. Collections of treasured American and English antiques and fine reproductions in furniture, art works, and light fixtures grace both the first and second floors. Separate from the main house is the restored original 1742 ice house. Dr. Howard and Mary J. Moses, owners.

Caserta II
14195 Caserta Road, Eastville

5243 Tickitank Way, Machipongo
Situated along Church Creek, this new Coastal Tidewater style home was completed in 2018. The interior features heart pine floors, vaulted ceilings and an open floor plan, well suited for modern living. A vibrant and eclectic collection of art from the homeowners’ travels and by various local Eastern Shore artists is showcased throughout. Reclaimed bricks from a Baltimore warehouse are repurposed in the service areas, interior chimneys and laundry rooms. First and second floor porches offer creek breezes and undisturbed water views. The intuitive floor plan of the upstairs master suite includes walk-through closets, upstairs laundry and an office. An open-concept chef’s kitchen, complete with a vintage oyster can collection, flows into the sun porch. Copper finishes, rain chains and an herb garden accent the exterior. The inviting outdoor living area includes a patio with a pergola and fireplace. Informal and lush coastal gardens frame the home with a variety of grasses, palmetto, mixed native plantings, roses, boxwood, hydrangea and fern. The pastoral waterfront landscape is further enhanced by live oaks, magnolias, crepe myrtles and palm trees. Susan and Christopher Gass, owners.
Finney House
24350 Finney Drive, Onancock
Built in 1813 on land inherited by Thomas Watts Finney, the residence sits along Parker Creek in Onancock. Completely restored by the current owners in 2011-19, the traditional Eastern Shore home was overhauled and a master bedroom was added in keeping with the existing structure. As if to assert authenticity, at one point during the renovation, musket balls fell out from a wall. Traditional Colonial paint colors on the exterior and interior convey the owners’ affinity for period furnishings, including treasured heirloom pieces like the corner cupboard from Havre De Grace, Md., that was salvaged during the War of 1812. Original glass windows, molding and doors repeat throughout Finney House, along with exquisite original dentils such as those on the mantel in the study. Between the home and the creek bank lies a shaded family cemetery – the final resting place of Thomas Watts Finney and three generations of his descendants. On one of the Finney House chimneys, “TWF 1813” is clearly carved into the brick. Holly, cypress, crepe myrtles and a grand walnut tree border this historic property. Dr. Laura D. Kerbin and Mr. Rick L. Matthews, owners.

The Ratcliffe-Allison-Pozer House 10386 Main Street
Built in 1812 by Richard Ratcliffe, Fairfax City’s founder, the structure was expanded in 1824 by the Allison family. This charming brick house is the city’s oldest residence within what was the original six-block Town of Providence. The daily activities of some of its 12 owners and occupants are interpreted for visitors, illustrating commercial and domestic change along Main Street during the 19th and 20th centuries. The last two owners were Kate Walter Barrett, a prominent social reformer, and her daughter, Kitty Pozer, the first gardening columnist for The Washington Post, who was also a writer for gardening magazines. Following her mother’s death, Kitty purchased the house with her husband, Charles Pozer. She deeded the house to the city in 1973. Following her death in 1981, Fairfax purchased her extensive property that extended to North Street to create the Kitty Pozer Garden, a passive park showcasing Kitty’s gardening tastes. The space features meandering pathways and benches beneath a tall tree cover. Kitty Pozer was one of the founders of The Garden Club of Fairfax and an officer in the Garden Club of Virginia. fairfaxva.gov/government/historic-resources

Mulberry Manor
Accessed only via shuttle, Parking for shuttle at 5635 Revercomb Court
This Colonial home on 12 acres was built in 1988. Additions by the homeowners make the home distinctly contemporary, with an open floor plan and walls of windows overlooking backyard koi ponds with three waterfalls and a footbridge. Flooring throughout the home is reclaimed random-plank heart pine. Art collections include four bronze statues, five original Mucha lithographs and a pastel obtained at auction from Clydes, a nearby restaurant where the homeowners met. An entire bedroom suite and Richard’s office are custom built of wild black cherry from West Virginia, his wife’s home state. A back-lit, stained-glass panel in the piano room is from an old English abbey. The large functional kitchen features state-of-the-art amenities and rustic touches such as reclaimed ceiling beams and wood posts, an oven-surround of Civil War-era brick, two hammered-copper sinks and counters of polished granite, honed granite and poured concrete. Outdoor rooms and gardens include a cottage garden, shade gardens, a vegetable garden, a ‘Peaceful Garden’ with a Celtic cross-shaped walking path, a firepit, two brick patios with dining areas, a sport court, a pool and pool house, a pond and a newly acquired historic barn. A pre-Revolutionary War-era cabin behind the main house was used as a hunting cabin by Lawrence Washington, half-brother to George Washington. The renovated cabin has a living-dining area with a stone fireplace. A narrow staircase leads to the upstairs bedroom and bath with all-natural wood floors, walls and ceiling. Jane Elizabeth and Richard Braun, owners.

Lasata
2713 Valestra Circle, Oakton
A long driveway lined with Bradford pear trees, creates a calm sense of arrival at this Colonial home named after a Native American word meaning “place of peace.” Built in 1954, major renovations in 1988-89 nearly doubled the living space and included extensive hardscaping and landscaping. The front was originally the rear of the home, and is now enhanced with stately columns, a portico entrance, and a large oval water feature. The exterior and interior finishes and renovations, as descriable today as they were 30 years ago, are evident upon entering the wide marble floored foyer. The bright and spacious “chef’s kitchen” with white lacquered cabinets and tiled backsplash features two islands, a counter-top grill, a marble pastry station with Freon cooling unit, two dishwashers and five ovens. Diagonal walnut inlay in the kitchen floor transitions to a herringbone pattern in the breakfast room and family room at either end of the kitchen. The family room has a coffered mahogany ceiling and a stone fireplace flanked by large arched windows. The library is designed with dark mahogany paneling, built-in bookshelves, tray ceiling with hand-carved dentil crown molding and fireplace mantel. The dining room accommodates a table for 12 and features corner hutches, hidden storage and one of the home’s seven fireplaces. A sunroom off the living room opens to a side patio with outdoor fireplace. The large brick and slate patio in the rear overlooks a terraced lawn and brick walkway with steps down to a pool and gazebo area. Pearl C. Erber, owner.

Historic Blenheim
3610 Old Lee Highway

This c.1859 central-hall plan Greek Revival-style brick farmhouse was built by Albert Willcoxon just prior to the Civil War. It is nationally significant for its voluminous quantity and quality of Civil War inscriptions. More than 122 signatures, pictographs, games, and thoughts were left on the house walls by Union soldiers during their occupation of the Fairfax Court House area in 1862-63. This “diary on walls” provides insight into the life of a typical soldier and the effect of this war on local residents, such as the Willcoxon family, as well as free and enslaved people of African descent. In the Civil War Interpretive Gallery, wall inscriptions and pictographs from the house are reproduced with full-sized photographs in the replica attic. The gallery also includes an illustrated timeline of Civil War events, artifacts that interpret the everyday soldier, biographies of several of the wall signers, and temporary displays. Closes at 3 p.m. fairfaxva.gov/government/historic-resources/historic-blenheim

PLACES OF INTEREST

Historic Fairfax Courthouse and Records Center
4000 Chain Bridge Rd.
The c.1800 courthouse, known for its Flemish-bond style brickwork, its 1844 cupola and bell, and the front arcade arches, was occupied by both the Confederate and Union Armies during the Civil War. The Fairfax Circuit Court Historic Records Center holds all the court’s records since the county’s founding in 1742, including George and Martha Washington’s wills, pages of which will be on display especially for this tour. Visitors must go through security screening before entering. fairfaxcounty.gov/circuit/historic-records-center/courthouse

The Fairfax Museum and Visitor Center
10209 Main St.
The former Fairfax Elementary School, built in 1873, was the first two-story brick school in Fairfax County. It provides general information for Fairfax City and Washington, D.C. and offers walking tours of Old Town Fairfax and the City’s historic buildings. fairfaxva.gov/government/historic-resources/fairfax-museum-visitor-center

Fairfax Station Railroad Museum
11200 Fairfax Station Rd., Fairfax Station
Originally built in 1852, the station was a logistics, communications and medical evacuation base where Clara Barton nursed wounded soldiers during the Civil War. The reconstructed station, now a museum that displays local railroad and Civil War artifacts, is a replica of the 1903 building. Free admission to the museum, grounds and the 1968 Norfolk Western caboose on tour day for HGW ticket holders. fairfax-station.org

St. Paul’s Episcopal Church, 5486 St. Paul’s Road

Listed on the National Register of Historic Places, St. Paul’s has been the parish church for St. Paul’s Parish since it was established in 1667. The congregation first met at Mr. Robert Townsends house near Choatank Creek, and the first church building was erected shortly thereafter. In 1725 a new church was constructed at the present site, and in 1766, the current building was erected. The structure is an example of Colonial architecture and is in the form of a Greek cross. Walls are laid in Flemish bond with locally produced brick. In 1802, under the Glebe Act, the building and land were taken over by the Virginia General Assembly, and the church became an academy. The current interior reflects the “academy Era.” In 1816, St. Paul’s was reorganized, and the building was returned to the congregation in 1830, when the academy failed. The church has changed very little since 1831. The Reverend Lee Gandiya, Rector.

Cleydael, 7144 Peppermill Road

Listed on the National Register of Historic Places, Cleydael’s claim to fame is its involvement in the flight of John Wilkes Booth and David Herold after the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln. Originally built as a summer residence c.1859 for Dr. Richard Stuart and his family, this two-story, five-bay, frame dwelling has a standing seam metal gable roof and wraparound porch. Rescued from the ravages of time and the former owner’s house pet, a sheep, the owners have significant sweat-equity in this quiet country home. Original staircases, floors, windows, glass, doors and moldings have been retained where possible. Even historically accurate paint colors were used to restore the color scheme to what it would have been 150 years ago. The setting includes many old growth trees among newer plantings. Renee and Charlie Parker, owners.

Morland, 5451 White Fox Lane

Located at the end of a mile-long paved lane, Morland is a 160-acre estate on the Potomac River. The main house c.1927, built in the Colonial Revival style, enclosed and expanded upon the frame of a two-story farm house erected in 1881. Between 1927 and 1935, the Mortons added a four-car garage, the River Cottage, the Garden Cottage, and finally the Boys’ House, a guest house built for the family’s two sons returning from World War II. All structures are brick with Buckingham slate roofs, copper gutters and ornate metal lightning rods. The 20 acres of surrounding grounds include a swimming pool, an ice house, a smoke house, a beach terrace, a dock and a barn with stalls. A thorough renovation of the main house, completed in 2004, included a new kitchen. The hand-painted walls in the formal dining room lead to a sunroom with French doors opening to the river.

enormous hemlock hedge, planted by the estate’s original owners, encloses a formal fountain garden. Numerous gardens include an all-white pocket garden, a shade garden, a rose garden, and a small vineyard with 90-year-old Concord grape vines. The current owners are descendants of the original family. Lauren and John Morton, owners.

Berry Plain

6227 Berry Plains Landing

Situated on 16 acres, the oldest portions of Berry Plain date to c.1720. This three-story classic Colonial with a front portico boasts ten-foot ceilings, heart pine floors, and many fireplaces now freed from 300 years of paint. Subtle differences in the interior woodwork help to delineate additions, including the first interior kitchen, which was added in 1959. Several outbuildings include former slave quarters, a barn, a summer kitchen and a salvaged 1845 West Virginia miner’s cabin, currently used as a potting shed. Mature boxwoods at the front of the home and lining the brick walkway were drastically pruned in 2018 to restore them to health. Numerous fruit trees have been planted to recreate the original orchard on the property. A massive cedar of Lebanon, pecan trees and old growth lilacs have been lovingly maintained by the current owners. The owners’ lifelong love of antiques is showcased in the furnishings. Elizabeth Hartfield and Mark Stone, owners.

Belle Grove Plantation Bed & Breakfast, 9221 Belle Grove Drive

Listed on the National Register of Historic Places, Belle Grove c.1790 commands the site of James Madison’s birthplace. Built in the Federal style, the heavy-timber frame plantation house includes lumber from two earlier buildings at the site. The original two-story house has undergone several periods of additions, decline, and renovations. In the 1840 expansion, structures were attached at each end to create a Greek revival mansion and a river-facing portico was added. A land-facing facade was added during the 1840s that included curving facades and curved doors. An extensive six-year restoration and renovation began in 1997. The original ceiling medallion in the foyer was removed in 1893 when the cornerstone for the present monument was laid. It was dedicated by President Grover Cleveland in 1894. The Garden Club of Virginia first planted the grounds in 1938 and recently renovated both the monument and grounds. bellegroveplantation.com.Kenmore in Fredricksburg

Mary Washington House

1200 Charles St.

Originally purchased in 1772 by George Washington for his mother, Mary Ball Washington, who resided there until her death in 1789, the house contains several pieces of original Washington and Ball memorabilia. The garden, recreated by the Garden Club of Virginia in 1968–69 features her sundial. Admission fee. (540) 373-1569 or washingtonheritagemuseums.org.

Mary Washington Monument

1500 Washington Ave.

Mary Washington was buried here in 1789. In the early 19th century, the Gordon family who gave Kenmore its name, established their family burial ground here as well. In 1833, President Andrew Jackson dedicated the first monument to the “Mother of Washington.” That monument, never completed, lay derelict and in pieces for almost 60 years. It was removed in 1893 when the cornerstone for the present monument was laid. It was dedicated by President Grover Cleveland in 1894. The Garden Club of Virginia first planted the grounds in 1938 and recently renovated both the monument and grounds. kenmore.org/ genealogy/washington/monument.html.

Chatham

120 Chatham Ln., Falmouth

The riverfront terraces offer a view of the city of Fredericksburg and the Rappahannock River, while a formal garden on the other side of the house features an array of roses and other flowers. Christ Episcopal Church 320 Williams Wharf Road

Kingston Parish was established around 1652 as one of the four Anglican parishes of Gloucester County, which included what is now Mathews. Christ Episcopal Church is one of only two remaining Episcopal churches of Kingston Parish in Mathews County. In 1715 references to “ye Easternmost River Church” were discovered in an old vestry book. The cemetery, which surrounds the church, is the resting place of a number of notables including Capt. Clarence Kirwan, the first owner of Weston Hall, and Capt. Sally Tompkins, CSA, the first woman to be commissioned as an officer in an American army. Sally’s sister, Elizabeth Tompkins, was largely responsible for restoring parish life and rebuilding the church in 1841 after it fell into disrepair from two decades of disuse. A stone-tablet memorial to Elizabeth is located behind the altar rail in the chancel. She is buried in the churchyard with Sally. Of special architectural interest is a unique parquet ceiling accented with carved acorns and an unusual converted oil chandelier.

Riverlawn and The Cottage

Accessed via shuttle or short walk from shuttle lot

This classic white frame home on the banks of the East River was built in 1874 and has undergone an impressive rehabilitation that began in 2012. Riverlawn’s interior is a window high under the roof peak and peak matches several others in the county which can be reliably dated c.1835. The current owners are part of the Cooke family, which entered the long history of the house around 1918 when Giles Buckner Cooke purchased the house. He had been a Confederate Army officer, educator, and Episcopal minister. By 1920 he was the last living member of Robert E. Lee’s wartime staff. His son, John Warren Cooke, was born in 1915 and grew up to be a politician and newspaper publisher. John Warren Cooke’s daughter and her husband are the current owners and third generation of the Cooke family to live here. In the room to the left of the entry hall is Giles Cooke’s writing desk as well as a fine portrait of John Warren Cooke by artist David Silvette dating from Cooke’s years as the Speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates. Palace Green has an extensive collection of family antiques and an impressive art collection. In addition, the charming waterfront guest cottage will be open. Palace Green was last open to Historic Garden Week visitors in 1992. Elsa and Paul Verryta, owners.

four-over-four central hall plan repeated on three stories with a staircase that provides formal access to all levels. It is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The home contains architectural surprises, such as the breakfast nook tucked into an old passageway near the kitchen. A nearby bathroom is wallpapered with nautical charts of the Chesapeake Bay. A side porch takes in sweeping views of the river and boasts two large bed swings for cool summer sleeping. The extensive art collection focuses on water-related and rural themes. Riverlawn is graced with numerous old growth hardwood trees, including a massive willow oak which measures 23 feet in circumference. Twenty scenic acres encompass an additional waterfront home, “The Cottage,” which will also be open for touring is co-owned by Martha and Lee Chapman and the Reids. Carter and Joe Reid, owners.

Samarkand, 341 Samarkand Lane
This estate embraces 26 bucolic acres on Woodas Creek, an estuary of the East River. Visitors will find beauty everywhere – from the winding alley of crepe myrtles that frame the driveway to mature gardens containing an extensive collection of specimen trees, camellias, boxwood and perennials. The vastness of the landscape lends itself to strolls punctuated with noteworthy exterior features. There is a sculpture by internationally-known artist Jun Kaneko, a small pavilion next to a lotus pool, and a central fountain in an oval garden depicting a boy fishing. The classically elegant interior of Samarkand with its marble foyer, raised-panel wainscoting and coffered ceilings is the perfect backdrop for an eclectic art collection, including works by local and international artists. In addition to the decor, visitors will enjoy the stories behind many of the items, including a Chinese sideboard and a child’s chair that belonged to the owner’s grandmother. Visit the Bartlett Tree Experts seedling table. Free tree seedlings to first 100 visitors.
Karen Tiller and Mark Polivka, owners.

Weston Hall
Accessed only via shuttle
This Arts and Crafts abode enjoys views of the East River and beyond to Mobjack Bay. Massive trees grace the sweeping lawn. Visitors can see across Mill Creek to nearby Poplar Grove and its original tide mill, the last one remaining in the Mobjack area. Weston Hall was built by Capt. Clarence Kirwan between 1900-1919. Legend has it that no construction was allowed to take place while the captain was at sea. Pine timber from the property was used for floors and doors. The sturdy looking exterior belies the airy feeling of the rooms within. Built to resemble the layout of a ship, the wide entry hall is 50 feet long and sweeps from the land-side entrance to the water-side. Large light-filled rooms with high ceilings provide an open and sunny ambiance and serve as a backdrop for the art collection and the tasteful decor. The homeowner is a painter and her artist’s touch is apparent throughout the home and garden, where a plein-air artist will be onsite. A recently renovated guest house will also be open for touring. Weston Hall was last open for touring in 2002.
Cindy and Bill Barnett, owners.

This walking and driving tour in Newport News pays homage to the area’s Mennonite community. Four private properties as well as Gardener’s Workshop Farm are featured. Two contemporary homes on the banks of the Warwick River sit on part of the original 1,200 acres purchased by Mennonites D.Z. Yoder and I.D. Hertzler in 1897. Two other homes are still owned by Mennonite families. The Yoder family homestead, where ducks, geese and swans swim in the family pond, is adjacent to the tour headquarters at Providence Mennonite Church, established in 1900. It is also the location of the tour’s popular Marketplace and its “Flowers After Hours” event.

Ticket Information

Ticket includes admission to the following 6 properties:

Providence Mennonite Church
13101 Warwick Boulevard
Providence Mennonite Church and cemetery are located on five acres adjacent to the C.P. Yoder Homestead on Warwick Blvd. It was built by Mennonite farmers and carpenters and established in 1900 as the Amish/Mennonite denomination. Several families had withdrawn from the Warwick River/Mennonite Church and D.Z. Yoder, co-founder of the Warwick River Mennonite Colony, served as their new pastor. A simple country church with a heart pine frame and a metal roof, it boasts cathedral-style windows and the original interior hand-crafted woodworking. Two original kerosene lamps are on display. The hitching ring for church members traveling by buggy in the early years remains. The congregation’s cemetery is just beyond the church. The building was moved about 40 feet in the mid-1970s when the roadway was widened. Additionally, there is a brick pavilion, a Fellowship Hall and an archives room.

Tender Branch
13057 Warwick Boulevard
Tender Branch is the original C.P. Yoder homestead. C.P. was the co-owner and founder of Yoder Dairy and acquired this Young’s Mill tract in 1930. He built the home currently lived in by his youngest daughter, Evangeline Yoder. The architecture is typical Colonial Revival with two stories, fireplaces, a wood frame and slate roof. The property occupies more than three acres of former field and pasture lands along busy Warwick Blvd. It is nestled behind a serpentine brick wall where ducks, geese and swans glide placidly in the family pond and wander throughout the grounds. Of special interest are the summer house, kitchen garden, grape arbor, foxglove garden, chicken house and evergreen borders. A major home renovation and addition took place in 1997. Each room is filled with character and family history, including memorabilia from the Yoder Dairy and Yoder/Smucker families. There are several French country antiques, a Swiss cuckoo clock, an original Noland & Co. stove and a family Bible from 1881. The heart pine floors were milled from the family sawmill. Mennonite headwear and a shawl hang in an upstairs guest room.

22 Walters Road
This Craftsman-style home, built by the current owners in 2016, stays true to its design with low-pitched rooflines, gables, a covered front porch and tapered columns. The exterior is composed of natural fieldstone and brick, with the exception of Hardiplank siding, and the palette reflects earth tones. Sited on an open two-acre parcel of land, the home offers a panoramic view of the confluence of the Warwick and James Rivers. Bordered by beds of perennials, flowering shrubs and ornamental grasses, the restful setting invites lounging by the pool and the simple enjoyment of the scenery.

home's main floor is open and comfortable, painted with soft coastal colors that frame the view of the natural surroundings through a wall of windows. The main living room has a fireplace of decorative stone, built-in cabinetry and shelves displaying the owners' pottery collection. Its coffered ceiling offers a significant architectural feature. Across from this space is a modern kitchen of simple lines featuring a large granite island. The upper floor’s home theater is a favorite room boasting its own candy counter and reclining leather seats. The lower floor features a large bar that was refurbished from an 1800s West Virginia speakasy. The bar’s original stained glass is intact.

48 Dillwyn Drive

This Cape Cod-style home sits on three acres that were originally planted as an orchard by the local Mennonite community. The driveway lined with crepe myrtles leads toward the water that beckons a walk and quiet contemplation. Built in 1984, the home sits high above the banks of Church Creek with views of Mulberry Island and the Warwick River where it meets the James River. In addition to colorful sunsets, the owners enjoy watching an abundance of wildlife that visit the rivers and marshes, including deer, herons and bald eagles. The backyard's natural setting is framed by tall pines and azaleas that lead the eye to the wetlands below. A deck and enclosed porch, in addition to the open floor plan, offer further opportunities to savor the views. A kitchen island includes a backlit stained-glass feature of a nature-inspired scene. The house is furnished with family heirlooms and art collections, including a great-grandmother's marble-topped sideboard, a teapot collection and dining table made by a grandfather. A rug purchased in Turkey decorates the office floor, along with an intricately carved trunk from Asia. Kim and Jay Pruden, owners.

Gardener's Workshop Farm
20 Miller Road (gardens only)

Home to a private urban flower farm, the Gardener’s Workshop Farm is situated on three acres that were part of the original 1,200-acre Mennonite tract. Since 1998, the owner has provided thousands of flowers each week from May to October to local florists and customer “shareholders” who purchase a part of her crop. Visitors can join a guided walking tour of the farm and view a 1947 scale model of the original Warwick River Mennonite Colony. The farm will be planted in cool-season hardy annuals including snapdragons, bachelor buttons, sweetpeas and other spring favorites.

Oakwood, 524 Martin Drive

Built in 1914-15 on the original 1,200-acre tract of the Mennonite Colony, this three-story farmhouse was saved from destruction in 1972 by the builder’s granddaughter and her husband, who are now the current owners. J. Harvey Yoder purchased more than 60 acres along Lucas Creek to establish a dairy farm. He built Oakwood out of “Anchor” block, which he hand-molded using sand and small shells he hauled from the Warwick River. Pine and oak from his woods were milled on the property and used for walls and floors. Lovingly restored and remodeled, the home features kitchen cabinets built from salvaged barn siding. The four-car garage, rebuilt in 2009,... vides space for the owner’s Mercedes projects, including a filtering system for waste vegetable oil used to power a 1983 Mercedes-Benz 300D. Outside, the landscape is divided into four garden areas. Of special interest is the Secret Garden. Terraced with blocks salvaged from the farm’s dairy house, it is bounded by a spreading magnolia and a bank of privet, mock orange and mulberry trees. Here, wildlife is welcomed among the heirloom iris, peonies, daylily, larkspur and other perennials. Volunteers from the Virginia Living Museum will be available to guide guests through the gardens.

Robby Ackerman and Susan Yoder Ackerman, owners.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 22, 2020, 10 A.M. TO 4 P.M.

Located in the middle of beautiful mountain ranges in Virginia, Harrisonburg, also known as “Rocktown,” boasts local food and libations, arts and culture, and historical roots that anchor it to the Shenandoah Valley landscape. Starting at the Tour Headquarters at CrossKeys Vineyard just 15 minutes from Harrisonburg, visitors will enjoy access to private homes and gardens that showcase both traditional and contemporary styles, as well as flower arrangements created by local garden club members. This self-driving tour can accommodate bus groups.

2970 Huntington Springs Drive, Rockingham

This home offers a phenomenal view of the surrounding Blue Ridge and Allegheny mountains from the front porch. Wood floors throughout are constructed from reclaimed barn wood. The main beam in the home comes from a local farm in Timberville. Note-worthy is the beautiful copper range hood in the kitchen, made by the homeowner. A cozy sunroom includes brick floors and a hand-carved mantel. Mr. Beitzel’s garage doubles as a workshop for metalsmithing. Jamie and Wayne Beitzel, owners.

563 Hickory Point Trail, Penn Laird

The understated beauty of its minimalistic interior belies the energy efficiency of this 2014 home that sits on 24 acres in eastern Rockingham County. Materials include timber, iron and stone, allowing for light and shade to add contrast and interest to the space. The house moves with the seasons by naturally welcoming the landscape through the large windows and tall ceilings. Beautiful light floods in, giving the rooms an open and airy feeling. The hierarchy of spaces are well considered with the kitchen at the center of the home. There are five family bedrooms, and an enclosed courtyard with a pool located directly off the entire first level. Twelve foot ceilings in the basement offer more open views to the outside during a workout in the home gym, a round of golf on the simulator or a game of basketball in the regulation half court space. It is ADA compliant and designed for aging in place. Mary Kaye and Chris Shinaber, owners.

3390 Huntington Springs Drive, Rockingham

This custom built home was completed in 2018 by Gary Crummett & Sons, who is the father of the homeowner. Designed as a modern farmhouse, it boasts 7,800 square feet and features a neutral palette of grey and white tones with natural wood accents. The open floor plan is well suited for family functions, fun and entertaining. A large kitchen island complements the family room and helps to connect the spaces. The sprawling front porch provides ample outdoor seating with views of the Massanutten Mountain peak. There is a game room, theatre and a home gym. An outdoor stone wood burning fireplace and living space add to the options for entertaining. Krystal Pittington and Aaron Crummett, owners.

La Petite Valley Retreat
117 Tilbury Court, Rockingham

With the goal of downsizing, the homeowners designed both the interior and exterior of their cottage so it could be easily enjoyed as they age-in-place. With a long-term vision and plan for their garden, they created a yard and outside environment intended to be enjoyed to the fullest upon its maturity. The fenced side yard features a Mediterranean-style patio. Its lushness contrasts the more casual rear yard that includes a dry creek bed enhanced by young plants and trees, making a country-like setting. An extended back porch is graced with a pergola and large potted plants. Comfortable furnishings create a relaxing setting for entertaining. Chuck Boles and Chris Chrisley, owners.

Berkeley Plantation
12602 Harrison Landing Road
The site of the first official Thanksgiving in 1619, Berkeley is also the birthplace of Benjamin Harrison V, signer of the Declaration of Independence and three-time governor of Virginia. The estate is the birthplace of William Henry Harrison, ninth president of the United States, and ancestral home of his grandson, Benjamin Harrison, the 23rd president. Taps was composed here when General McClellan headquartered 140,000 Union troops on the property for two months in 1862. The original Georgian mansion, built in 1726 of brick fired on the plantation, occupies a landscaped hilltop site overlooking the historic James River. The date of the building and the initials of the owners, Benjamin Harrison IV and his wife Anne, appear in a datestone over a side door. The mansion is said to be the oldest three-story brick house in Virginia that can prove its date and the first with a pediment roof. Five terraced gardens leading from the house to the river were dug by hand before the Revolutionary War. Many 100-year-old trees grace the restored boxwood garden offering breathtaking vistas of the James River. On the adjacent farm-land, sheep graze in the distant rolling hills on this nearly 1000-acre plantation.

Owned by the Malcolm E. Jamieson family.

Shirley Plantation
501 Shirley Plantation Road
Shirley Plantation is home to 12 generations of one family who continue to own, operate and work Virginia’s first plantation, established only six years after John Smith’s settlement at Jamestown in 1607. Shirley Plantation is the oldest family-owned business in North America, farmed by the Hill Carter family since 1638. The present mansion was begun in 1723 as a wedding present for Elizabeth Hill and John Carter, eldest son of Robert “King” Carter. The mother of Confederate General Robert E. Lee, Annie Hill Carter, was born at Shirley and married Revolutionary War hero, “Light Horse Harry” Lee in the great house parlor. Considered by many to be the most intact Colonial estate in America, the great house is largely in its original state and features a three-floor, square-rigged or “flying” staircase in the main hall. Still lived in by direct descendants of the first generation, Edward Hill, the guided tour of the great house highlights stories from the Hill Carter family, including several occasions when the property was saved by the hard work, dedication and humanity of the Carter women. Gardens, eight original colonial outbuildings and commanding views of the James River complete this majestic setting.

Owned by the Charles Hill Carter family.

Westover Plantation
7000 Westover Road
One of the grandest and most beautiful of the Colonial Plantations, Westover was built in the mid-eighteenth century by the Byrd family. Long considered a premier example of Georgian architecture in America, the house’s special charm lies in its elegant yet extremely simple form and perfect proportions. Of special interest are the steepness of the roof, the tall chimneys in pairs at both ends of the main house, and the elaborate doorway, which continues to be recognized as “the Westover doorway” despite its adaptation to many other buildings and homes. Shaded by 150-year-old tulip poplars, Westover’s lawn offers a commanding view of the James River and majestic eagles soaring overhead. The grounds are still protected by wrought-iron gates hung by William Byrd II, author, diarist, Colonial leader and founder of the cities.

DIRECTIONS TO TOUR AREA

Of special interest are the steepness of the roof, the tall chimneys in pairs at both ends of the main house, and the elaborate doorway, which continues to be recognized as “the Westover doorway” despite its adaptation to many other buildings and homes. Shaded by 150-year-old tulip poplars, Westover’s lawn offers a commanding view of the James River and majestic eagles soaring overhead. The grounds are still protected by wrought-iron gates hung by William Byrd II, author, diarist, Colonial leader and founder of the cities.

of Petersburg and Richmond. The interior, normally closed to the public, is noted for the beautiful proportions of the rooms, ornately carved ceilings, the detail of the cornice and stairway, and an unusual black mantelpiece. And because it’s a home and not a museum, visitors will see the recent transformation of the library into a new kitchen and living space, on display for the very first time. After the death of William Byrd III’s widow in 1814, Westover was sold out of the Byrd family. In 1921 Mr. and Mrs. Richard Crane acquired the property. Today, their great-granddaughter and her family make it their home and care for this historic landmark. Westover was featured on the first Historic Garden Week in 1929. Westover Episcopal Church
6401 John Tyler Memorial Highway
Between 1611 and 1613, as colonists moved west from Jamestown, several small parishes were formed and eventually merged to become Westover. The original Westover Church was constructed between 1630 and 1637 on nearby Westover Plantation. In 1730, construction of the current church was completed at its site on Herring Creek, 1.5 miles north of Westover plantation. The end of support for the Episcopal Church by public taxation at the start of the Revolutionary War in 1776, followed by the War of 1812, the prejudice against the Church as an English loyalist institution, and a declining interest in religion culminated in a period of desecration at Westover. For 30 years after 1803, Westover Church was misused as a barn and services of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Virginia lapsed completely in Charles City County. In 1833, however, religious services were revived by the Reverend Parke Farley Berkeley, a missionary sent to Charles City County. At this time the church structure was repaired and restored, principally through the efforts of the Harrisons and Carters, owners of Berkeley and Shirley plantations. Badly damaged by Federal troops during the Civil War, Westover Church was once more restored to service in 1867 and has been used faithfully ever since. Worshipers at Westover have included Presidents Washington, Jefferson, Harrison, Tyler and Theodore Roosevelt as well as farmers, plantation owners, and their slaves.

Lynchburg
TUESDAY, APRIL 21, 2020, 10 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

Nestled in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, Lynchburg is home to timeless, classic architecture, tree-lined avenues, and a rich history of preserving the area’s celebrated homes and gardens. From historic to twentieth-century design, five properties are featured on this self-driving tour, including Thomas Jefferson’s personal retreat, Poplar Forest. The tour captures the creative spirit, with striking interiors curated by aesthetic homeowners, including a skilled portrait artist, a talented floral designer, a dynamic decorative artist, and a well-traveled decorator. Secluded gardens, brimming with hues of spring, showcase a dedication to native plants, careful planning, and attention to scale and proportion. At Poplar Forest, a National Historic Landmark, we celebrate the Centennial of Historic Garden Week by showcasing the restoration of the Carriage Turnaround and archeological research of the adjacent Rose Garden made possible by proceeds from Historic Garden Week. Buses and group tours are welcomed.

Thomas Jefferson’s
Poplar Forest, 1542 Bateman Bridge Road, Forest

Jefferson’s private retreat and plantation, Poplar Forest provided Jefferson with the perfect setting to pursue his passion for reading, writing, and gardening after retiring from public life in 1809. The octagonal shaped home, designed by Jefferson, with ongoing interior restoration by Poplar Forest’s team of expert craftsmen, reflects Jefferson’s idealistic design aesthetic and celebrates classical forms in architecture. The interior is divided into four elongated octagons surrounding the center dining room, a perfect twenty-foot cube. With no exterior walls, it is lit from above: a sixteen-foot skylight streaks the room with light. This room also supplies an architectural surprise: a soaring two-story space in what appears, from the front, to be a single-story house. Five floor-to-ceiling windows and doors in the adjacent parlor open to the columned south portico which overlooks a sunken lawn, once planted in ornamental flowers and shrubs. Jefferson’s landscape continues his love of geometry and classic design. Poplar Forest archaeologists have carefully excavated and studied evidence related to Jefferson’s ornamental grounds, including his eighty-foot diameter carriage turnaround constructed by slave laborers, the double row of mulberry trees to the west of the retreat, and the clumps of ornamental trees and oval flower beds located in front. The property, officially adopted by the Garden Club of Virginia in 2011, has undergone significant restoration. The north side of Jefferson’s retreat is beginning to look as it did during Jefferson’s ownership for the first time in nearly 200 years.

209 Carters Grove Lane

The spacious landscape of this two-acre property, commonly known as “Creekside,” incorporates both formal and casual elements. Adjacent to the home, a fenced English cottage garden confines plantings to symmetrical beds. Peonies, daffodils, and Lenten rose, inherited from the homeowner’s grandmother, provide contrasting hues to defined pea gravel paths. Beyond the cottage garden, a lawn bordered by native plants and mature trees reflect the natural flora of the Piedmont. Botanical themes and a love of art and color continue in the interior of this custom brick colonial home. An 18th century mantel from Rockbridge County, restored by the homeowner, displays Rose Medallion China against a bold turquoise wall in the living room. A museum quality Sampson Diuguid cabinet houses an extensive collection of Majolica in the family room. Notable art, including portraits of Heald family members by William Henry Hilliard and works by Marion Bullard and Dutch realist painter Anton Mauve, blends seamlessly with modern furnishings throughout the home. In the dining room, a c. 1850 Civil War era Repousse silver service graces an 18th century chest. The service was given as payment from a railroad company to Mrs. Bendall’s grandfather.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Bendall, III, owners.
4941 Locksview Road

Based on the George Wythe House in Williamsburg, this home was designed by the homeowner and built in 1995. The two-story, brick Georgian honors colonial architecture while incorporating modern conveniences. An expansive sunroom, the new heart of the home, and a deck overlooking the garden were added in 2013. The homeowners’ artistic eye is evident in collections of porcelain as well as French and English antiques throughout the home. An extensive display of paintings by Mrs. Richards, a skilled portrait, landscape and botanical artist, provide a connection to the garden beyond. The sloping backyard is terraced with mortared field-stone walls. Sun loving perennials, including peony, lavender, and columbine, border the garden and complement recently planted boxwood shrubs. One of the first homes in Lynchburg to suffer the boxwood blight in 2016, the homeowners removed 62 diseased boxwoods and replanted new cultivars to blend seamlessly with the existing landscape. Beyond the terrace, a shade garden planted in honor of a friend leads to an Arts and Crafts style cedar garden shed with a standing seam metal roof constructed by Mr. Richards.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Richards, owners.

4113 Peakland Place

Located in the heart of Boonsboro on a charming tree-lined parkway, once home to the Rivermont Trolley, this colonial revival home was extensively renovated and expanded in 2018. The house now features a gourmet kitchen, airy family room, vaulted master suite, and a columned rear porch with a working fireplace. The east wing, previously a family room, has been transformed by white on white treillage, or lattice work, into a sunroom complete with double doors opening to a French balcony. A painted floor with a central compass medallion grounds the space. In the dining room, an antique crystal chandelier is balanced by a painted floor overlaid with geometric Moravian stars. Frequent travelers, the homeowners’ antiques and collections adorn the interior. Of particular note are collections of folk-art figurines and Majolica. The design of the addition intentionally creates easy access to the out-of-doors. Two sets of double French doors in the family room lead to the rear veranda. The newly planted landscape features a Williamsburg shed and a fairy garden discretely tucked behind the west wing of the home. Hydrangea, boxwood, and peony provide color and texture in the border.

Dr. and Mrs. James E. Foster, owners.

3125 Rivermont Avenue

Meticulously crafted in 1941, this two-story, five-bay brick colonial boasts classic design elements, generous living areas, and a newly renovated modern kitchen. The home resides in the Rivermont Historic District, listed on the National Register of Historic Places. A north facing Doric portico welcomes guests into a foyer where generations of family portraiture line the stairwell. In the living room, a three-foot by six-foot highly detailed replica of the U.S. Capitol anchors the space. The model, built by a Shenandoah Valley craftsman, was painstakingly restored by Mr. Burton’s father and is over a hundred years old. While history abounds in the space, the current owner’s interests influence the furnishings. Visual arts in pastel hues brighten and modernize timeless architectural elements, while taxidermy specimens speak to a love of nature and the hunt. Behind the home, a slate terrace provides a place to lounge and view the garden. Encased by a serpentine brick wall, an arched fountain draws visitors to the south-east corner. The formal hardscaping is softened by generous planting beds of boxwood, hydrangea, spring bulbs and flowering perennials.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Burton, IV, owners.

307 West Main Street

This Queen Anne-style house, a National Register property, was the home of noted Harlem Renaissance poet Anne Spencer (1889-1975). The interior and furnishings are unchanged from the 73 years the Spencer family lived there. Many nationally known Harlem Renaissance visitors, civil rights leaders and prominent African Americans... were guests of the Spencers’ over the years. Anne loved both poetry and gardening. Her garden cottage, “Edankraal,” was a retreat for Anne and a source of inspiration for many of her poems. Beginning in 1983, the garden was restored to its 1937 appearance by Hillside Garden Club, which continues its routine maintenance. The garden has twice won the Common Wealth Award from the Garden Club of Virginia. A Virginia Historic Landmark. annespencermuseum.com.

Miller-Claytor House and Garden
2200 Miller Claytor Lane
Lynchburg’s only remaining 18th century townhouse was originally located downtown and was moved to Riverside Park in 1936. The garden, a typical example of the period, was designed by noted landscape architect Charles F. Gillette and installed by the Lynchburg Garden Club in 1940. The garden remains an ongoing project of the Lynchburg Garden Club and was a 2012 winner of the Common Wealth Award given by the Garden Club of Virginia. A Virginia Historic Landmark. lynchburghistoricalfoundation.org

Old City Cemetery
401 Taylor Street
History and horticulture abound in this restored public cemetery, established in 1806. The entrance gatehouse was a Garden Club of Virginia Commonwealth Award project. There is a Confederate section with more than 2,200 graves of soldiers from 14 states. Five small museums are located on the grounds. Described as a “grave garden,” the cemetery is an arboretum of historic plants with specimens botanically labeled, including more than 200 antique roses, medicinal herbs, a butterfly garden and pond, shrub garden, antique daffodils, and hundreds of native and ornamental trees. The cemetery is a Virginia Historic Landmark. gravegarden.org.

Point of Honor
112 Cabell Street
Sited in Daniel’s Hill overlooking the James River, Point of Honor is an example of Piedmont Federal architecture. Built c.1815 for Dr. George Cabell, the house is distinguished by its octagonal façade and finely crafted interior woodwork. Dr. Cabell (1766-1823) was a prominent Virginia surgeon and Patrick Henry’s close personal friend and physician. He married Sarah Winston, Patrick Henry’s cousin, in 1792. Inherited by William Lewis Cabell upon the death of his mother in 1826, the mansion was renovated in 1828. In 1830, Judge William Daniel inherited the property. The mansion has been restored to its original appearance and furnished with period pieces. A Virginia Historic Landmark. pointofhonor.org. In 1977-78, with proceeds from Historic Garden Week, the Garden Club of Virginia began restoration of the grounds.

Sweet Briar Gardens
Route 29 (Gardens only)
12 miles north of Lynchburg. (Gardens only) Surrounding the historic Sweet Briar House, the Boxwood Garden and Daisy’s Garden date to the 19th century. In addition, the College’s new agricultural enterprises, a 20-acre wildflower meadow adjacent to the bee apiary and butterfly research garden and across from the vineyards, will be available for viewing. Volunteers will be on site to provide additional information. In 2005, the Garden Club of Virginia restored the arrival court in front of Sweet Briar House with funding from Historic Garden Week tours. (434) 381-6163.

Located in a true “foothills” community, this self-driving tour takes visitors on rural country roads where expanses of pastureland reveal breathtaking mountain views. Featured homes are situated in landscapes that reflect the rich agricultural history of the area. Southside Virginia blooms with azaleas, peonies and dogwood in the spring. Relying heavily on flowers gathered from local gardens, arrangements by talented members of the tour’s host clubs will decorate three home interiors. Visitors will enjoy the scenery near the Smith and Mayo Rivers that beckoned the original Native American settlers, colonial farmers and industrial giants to the area.

203 Westover Lane, Martinsville

Nestled among mature trees and lush landscaping, this ranch style home affords peaceful privacy within the city. Built in the 1960s and purchased by the current owners in 2016, the handicapped-accessible home manifests gracious hospitality and sophistication. Of particular note in the spacious entryway is a large solid walnut family heirloom wardrobe. Mr. Austin's collection of sculpture displayed in the foyer, living room and dining room is of special interest. Blown glass sculpture in the dining room includes work by Dale Chihuly and Ed Branson. Portraits of Mrs. Austin's sons and Mr. Austin's son and daughter hang on either side of large living room windows with views of a winding pathway through dogwood trees and white azaleas. Mrs. Austin enjoys playing the baby grand piano that is also fitted as a player piano. Paintings by famous artists as well as local and family artists displayed throughout the home, and an antique Chinese screen in the sunroom, reflect the owners' love of many styles of artwork. The second floor includes two bedrooms and Mr. Austin's office. A patio featuring a fire pit is perfect for enjoying cool spring and autumn evenings.

Crystal and Jim Austin, owners.

One Starling Avenue, Martinsville

This American Foursquare style home was built in 1925 by Nicholas Schottland, co-founder of Virginia Mirror Company, and his wife, May Finley Schottland. The brick two-story home has the boxy shape and dormer window centered on the slope roof, which were the hallmarks of the four-square house. The basic style was modified with Colonial Revival elements, which include the paneled front door with sidelights and fanlight, and a portico with pediment and Ionic columns. The home was considered to be of such historic and architectural significance that it was saved from scheduled demolition 15 years ago by a group of concerned citizens. It was then purchased by a local businessman and used as office space for a number of years. Recently, it has been converted into a bed and breakfast and small events venue. The original architectural elements of the interior remain, including the staircase, chandeliers, high wainscoting, built-in cabinetry, dentil crown molding, and a paneled overmantel with pilasters. Antique furniture from the current owner's family is juxtaposed with contemporary pieces. The second floor has four bedrooms which are furnished in a minimalist but comfortable manner. THE REGULAR TOUR TICKET INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE FOLLOWING 3 LOCATIONS:

» White Hall, 6551 Main Street, The Plains

Nestled in the charming village of The Plains, this stately and picturesque Greek Revival house, until it was purchased and renovated by the current owners in 2018, had been in the same family since it was built in 1903. Originally a wood frame house, the structure was covered in stucco in the early 20th century then overlaid with brick by mid-century. Portions from each stage are still exposed. White Hall embraces neoclassical elements of design, including a graceful front portico, towering columns and a grand foyer stretching the length of the house. It also boasts 12-foot ceilings, original floors, plaster and wood molding, original plaster walls and pocket doors in the central hall, living room and dining room. Of special interest are the two 12-foot mirrors mounted in the central hall and dining room, which originally stood in the Imperial Russian Embassy. Recent exterior plantings, including 28 new trees, were installed in 2019 to update and complement the existing mature landscape. The front walk is bordered with ‘Limelight’ hydrangeas, ‘Wintergreen’ boxwood and crepe myrtles; plumago and plum yew provide ground cover. The front wall is graced with magnolia, while ‘Yoshino’ cherry trees line the service driveway.

» Elysian Fields Farm, 7152 Rock Hill Mill Road, The Plains (gardens only)

The main residence is a contemporary blend of English and American architectural styles. Composed of six separate interconnected structures, the home is elevated six inches off exterior grade, creating a unique symbiotic integration of exterior and interior space. Seven walkable garden areas, in addition to plantings and landscaping, surround the residence. The entrance to the gardens is through a folly into an intimate garden foyer, off of which are the north and south garden chambers, each with an arched entrance. A distant westward view reveals a Palladian-style entry pavilion facing a reflecting pool surrounded by woody and herbaceous plantings and two allées of pear trees. From the path bordering the reflecting pool, there are distant westerly views through the glass connectors on either side of the entrance pavilion. To the north of the path is a moon gate and entrance to the north garden, which contains a parade of ginkgo trees, two seating areas and another reflecting pool. To the south of the house is a kitchen garden with an allée of hornbeams, a fountain bounded by a rill, and a pergola, beyond which is an open lawn surrounded by perennial gardens, a boxwood border, and a ha-ha.

» Ashleigh, 3252 Winchester Road, Delaplane

This Greek Revival country house was built in 1840 on land that was originally part of Chief Justice John Marshall’s estate, Oak Hill. Marshall’s granddaughter, Margaret Marshall Smith, designed the house for her residence, where she and her husband lived until 1860. With dramatic views of the Delaplane countryside, the stone and stuc-

5.5 miles south of Leesburg on Rt. 15. A Greek Revival mansion, c. 1805, once the center of a thriving 3,400-acre plantation. It includes the restoration of a garden forcing wall and a pathway, a portion of which was restored by the Garden Club of Virginia with funding from Historic Garden Week tours.

Sky Meadows State Park, 11012 Edmonds Ln., Delaplane. The park was formed when Paul Mellon donated 1,132 acres of land in 1975 (another 248 acres, containing the Appalachian Trail, was added in 1987), and in 1991 Paul Mellon added an additional 462 acres. The name Sky Meadows came from former owner Sir Robert Hadow, who named the property “Skye Farm” after an island in Scotland. The park has scenic views, woodlands and the rolling pastures of a historic farm that captures the colonial through modern life of the Crooked Run Valley.

Grace Episcopal Church, 6507 Main St., The Plains. Founded in 1855, originally one of three churches in the Piedmont Parish, sharing a rector for many years with Trinity Church in Marshall and Emmanuel Church in Delaplane. Ravaged during the Civil War, the church and parish hall were rebuilt in the early 20th century out of local stone. Example of 13th century rural English Gothic architecture.

Emmanuel Episcopal Church, 9670 Maidstone Rd., Delaplane. Built in 1859 on land donated by a granddaughter of Chief Justice John Marshall for Episcopalians in the vicinity of Oak Hill, the Marshall family home. Once used as a hospital by both Union and Confederate troops during the Civil War.

Anglican Church of St. John the Baptist, 4107 Winchester Rd., Marshall. Built as one of the three original churches in Piedmont Parish, the building that now houses the church was erected in 1849 as Trinity Episcopal Church. It was used as a hospital during the Civil War, and also used by the American Red Cross during WWll. In 1997 the building was renovated and became the current Anglican church.

Oak Spring

Registration and access via shuttle from 8538 Mill Reef Road, off Rokeby Road, Upperville.

With magnificent views of the Blue Ridge Mountains to the west and the Bull Run Mountains to the east, the Oak Spring estate is part of the once much larger Rokeby Farms and was the home of Paul Mellon (1907-1999) and Rachel “Bunny” Lambert Mellon (1910-2014), two of the greatest American art collectors and philanthropists of the late 20th century. Included in the tour are part of the main Mellon residence and all of its extensive garden, the formal greenhouse, Oak Spring Gallery, and the Broodmare Barn, where Paul Mellon raised many of his most successful thoroughbreds, including Sea Hero, winner of the 1993 Kentucky Derby. The main residence is a complex of whitewashed stone buildings designed by the New York architect H. Page Cross. The walled garden was designed by Bunny Mellon and incorporates a series of individually designed formal and informal spaces, separated by low stone walls and brick and gravel paths, and set on three terraces. Distinctive features include espaliered fruit trees, two reflecting pools, and a bridge to a garden pavilion. Beyond the north wall, an arbor leads to the formal greenhouse with two further reflecting pools. The Oak Spring Gallery houses an exhibit on Mrs. Mellon and her family.

NEW TO HISTORIC GARDEN WEEK!
- First time a property has been featured extensive renovations, adding gardens surrounding the residence. A circular boxwood garden fronts the house. In the center stands a Lace Tree imported from France. Several original out buildings still remain on the property, including a smokehouse and a tobacco barn that have been converted into an outdoor bar. The servant’s quarters have been renovated into a guest cottage. The waterfall behind the front door was painted by a former owner, Dr. Brockett Muir. Another painting in the foyer depicts the home as it looked at the turn of the century. The staircase is original. Collectors, the owners have decorated with many significant pieces, including a folk-art hutch dated 1885 in the living room. The magnolia plates inside it were inherited from a former owner of the house.

564 General Puller Highway, Saluda
Located in the heart of Saluda, this c. 1910 home was built by the local sheriff and sits atop a knoll. Constructed as an American foursquare, it was originally a two-story house with a front and back porch that ran along the full width of the house. The minimal adornment on the outside is a direct response to the heavy woodwork of the Victorian era. The second owner was a doctor, who used it as his offices, adding two wings to the house and removing both porches. The current owners, who renovated the house in 1984, consider it a family home and worked diligently to return the building to its original design. A master bedroom wing was created from the former doctor’s office. Inside, the home is open and airy, boasting a grand front foyer with a staircase. Noteworthy are the antiques throughout the house, a vintage Coca-Cola machine in the modern kitchen and a rocking boat that was patterned from a row skiff built by Edward Diggs. Marcia and Curtis Jones, owners.

Leafwood
- 820 Gloucester Road, Saluda

Built in 1781, Leafwood was originally part of Clarke’s Neck Plantation and was an overseer’s home. The Marston family acquired the home in 1856. Later it was bought by John Saunders, Attorney General of Virginia, and remained in that family until 2005. The current owners purchased it in 2017 and have completed extensive renovations, adding gardens surrounding the residence. A circular boxwood garden fronts the house. In the center stands a Lace Tree imported from France. Several original out buildings still remain on the property, including a smokehouse and a tobacco barn that have been converted into an outdoor bar. The servant’s quarters have been renovated into a guest cottage. The waterfall behind the front door was painted by a former owner, Dr. Brockett Muir. 798 Deerchase Road, Saluda
Beginning in 1994, LIFE magazine asked well-known architects to design their idea of a modern residence, and made the plans for one available each year. In 1997, John Raftenbury, influenced by Frank Lloyd Wright, created the plans for this home, which was the contest winner. Three years later, the homeowners purchased the plans from LIFE and built their home in Saluda. Today, it stands as an example of Wright and Rantenbury’s goals to blend outdoor and indoor living spaces through architectural design. Maximizing natural light and vistas are important to the overall aesthetic, and the siting of the edifice reflects this plan. Careful attention was given to integrating roof lines with the outdoor landscape. Porches extend the living areas, further showcasing the extensive native gardens surrounding the structure. In addition to views of the Piankatank River, a creek wanders through the property. Inside, carefree living is achieved with ample built-in shelves and cabinets, many built by the current homeowners. Only one wall separates the family areas, allowing for large gatherings. The space is intimate, yet it is also open and in-

Southern Sighs Inn, 35 Wares Bridge Road, Church View

Located just adjacent to Route 17, the former Dragon Run Inn has been transformed. This home was originally built in 1913 by George Northam using cypress lumber harvested from the flats of Dragon Run, 35 miles of swamp located at the headwaters of the Piankatank River. Purchased by the current homeowner in 2016, it is now a bed and breakfast melding European style with Southern design. Each room has a different theme based on the owners’ travels. The Russian Room contains Russian and Eastern European art and color schemes. The Greenbrier Room pays tribute to Dorothy Draper’s work at the famous resort. Named for Mary Lynn’s great-grandfather, Adolph Russow, who was the vintner at Monticello Wine Company, the Vintner’s room combines French and American style with room to play. In addition to a bar, there is also a German table soccer game. The Palladian Room is the Inn’s formal public room. Art and decor are eclectic. Wall finishes were inspired by the interior of a traditional French Villa.

Norfolk

THURSDAY, APRIL 23, 2020, 10 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

On the banks of the Lafayette River, a new section of houses has been added to the Talbot Park neighborhood on grounds that were originally part of a Federal era plantation with ties to the antebellum heritage of southeastern Virginia. Home to the Talbot family for 150 years, the land was gifted to the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Virginia, then sold in 2015. Today, it represents a blend of Norfolk’s past and its future. This walking tour features six private homes showcasing both modern and traditional architecture. Visitors will enjoy the neighborhood’s quiet streets filled with live oaks and views of the river.

TICKET INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE FOLLOWING 6 PRIVATE PROPERTIES, AND 2 ADDITIONAL SITES:

6601 Talbot Hall Court

When designing the house for their blended family, the owners worked with the architect and builder to create a space that took full advantage of the water views, but was also completely functional for a family of seven. The open concept floor plan features a spacious den with floor to ceiling windows framing the live oak that centers the backyard, leading into a kitchen and butler’s pantry featuring dark blue cabinets and quartz countertops. A covered porch extends the length of the house, with two seating areas on either end and a bar with pass-through access to the kitchen. Of special interest is the extensive collection of artwork passed down from the homeowners’ grandfather, downstairs, works by Miro, Alexander Calder, Renoir and renowned local artist Charles Sibley are displayed with framed artwork from the owners’ children. Lake and Kathryn Suber, owners.

6621 Talbot Hall Court

Visitors will enjoy panoramic views of the water from the moment they walk through the front doors of this contemporary home built in 2019. Every detail, from the door-knobs to the railings, was chosen to create an aesthetic that the homeowners describe as “California clean living.” Crisp, geometric lines and contemporary prints mix with antiques and mid-century modern pieces to create a sophisticated yet relaxed atmosphere. The open concept layout matches future needs as well as their current ones, and includes a master suite and laundry room on the first floor as well as doorways which meet ADA requirements. The large covered porch is an extension of the main living space with floor to ceiling windows that extend the view, bringing the natural world closer. Outside, the nearby shoreline is home to abundant wildlife including ducks, geese, osprey, night herons, and occasionally a bald eagle. Steven Field and Robin Putnam, owners.

6631 Talbot Hall Court

Walk up the stone steps and through the front door of this house built in 2017 for impressive views of the Lafayette River. The entire home was designed so that every room has a view of the water. Boasting a center hall plan, the neutral fabrics and muted decor highlight the natural materials used in the construction. A gilded metal mirror in the foyer is complemented by the chandelier hanging above the delicately curved upstairs banister. The living room contains a 100-year-old grandfather clock brought to the United States by the homeowner’s grandfather when he emigrated from Scotland, as well as a painting of the Chrysler Museum commissioned by the owners to memorialize the view from their previous home. The gourmet kitchen features a square island. It opens into a den and, beyond, a covered patio where the owners enjoy morning coffee and evening libations. Jim and Carol Forrester, owners.

6641 Talbot Hall Court

The exterior of this classic yet informal shingle style home, distinguished by its wood cladding, asymmetrical façade, and gambrel roofs is echoed inside by the light and bright interior decorated in soft blues and grays. The coastal theme is further reinforced by a curved wall that separates the dining room from the open living space. A handcrafted compass rose incorporated into the hardwood floor in the foyer directs guests due west to the sunsets over the river, visible from the floor to ceiling windows. The traditional dining room features an antique pedestal dining room table and sideboard as well as a Charles Sibley floral painting. Eclectic and diverse art from local and Eastern Shore artists is displayed in the kitchen and above the baby grand piano in the living room. The outdoor patio and fireplace provide a vantage point from which to watch migratory birds amidst native plants. Billy and Judy Dashiell, owners.

and designer to create a home perfect for entertaining. The blue shingled exterior opens into an interior with an open floor plan which includes a chef’s kitchen and an angled island. There is ample room to cook while family and friends help, or keep company. The covered porch includes an outdoor kitchen, extending the living and entertaining space that leads to a pool and patio. The dining room is separated from the main living space by paneled wainscoting, which extends seven feet upward, creating a relaxed yet formal appearance. Interesting architectural elements include angled walls, hammered metal and crystal chandeliers and textured glass doors. These are accented by modern art.

6741 Talbot Hall Crescent

When designing and building this classic brick house in 2018, the homeowner, who owns a construction company, collaborated with local experts to ensure that the design would blend with the historical integrity of the original estate the neighborhood now occupies. They oriented the house on the point to take full advantage of the sweeping vistas of the tidal marsh, the Lafayette River, and the port. Preserving as much mature vegetation as they could, the owners have maintained a natural shoreline, adding 1,500 plants on the waterfront to complement the existing shrubbery, pine trees, live oaks and sweet bay. Inside, the foyer opens onto a large space suited for entertaining large groups of family and friends. An oversized farm table was handcrafted from fir beams and floorboards salvaged from an old apple processing plant. The owners were able to obtain enough remaining wood from the same location to create the wide plank floors that run throughout the house. Every detail—from the large stone fireplace to the custom cabinetry in the kitchen—was chosen to create a warm and inviting ambiance.

Norfolk Botanical Garden, 6700 Azalea Garden Road

In 1938 Frederic Heutte, a young horticulturist, and Thomas Thompson, Norfolk city manager, were given 150 acres to establish a city azalea garden. By 1942 the garden displayed nearly 5,000 azaleas, 75 landscaped acres, and five miles of walking trails. Today, the 175-acre botanical garden is accredited by the American Alliance of Museums and run by a private non-profit. Home to more than 60 gardens that can be viewed by tram, boat or foot, it boasts 15 miles of paths. Gardens include cultivated and wild native and exotic plants in themed gardens such as the largest rose garden on the East Coast, a butterfly garden and house, Japanese garden and a Colonial garden.

Northern Neck – Lancaster County

TICKET INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE STATE PARK AND 6 PROPERTIES IN LANCASTER:

Belle Isle Manor House, 1632 Belle Isle Road

Using funds from the 1992 Virginia Park and Recreational Facilities Bond Act, the Virginia Department of Conservation and Recreation purchased approximately 675 acres of land slated for development to create Belle Isle State Park the following year. The 1770s Belle Isle Manor House was purchased from the Gruis family in 2015 and is now part of the park, and also protected from development. The park is the recipient of Garden Club of Virginia Centennial grants in 2017, 2018 and 2019.

Bel Air Mansion

Built in 1940 by John G. Pollard, Jr., and his wife Peggy, this Colonial style house was designed by Thomas T. Waterman. An expert in his field, Waterman served as the director of the Historic American Building Survey and consulted on the restoration of Colonial Williamsburg. Bel Air was built by local craftsman Bayse Haynie using cypress trees harvested from Belle Isle Farm. Inside accents, including walnut balusters and pine dados, were repurposed from a nearby King and Queen County home built by Carter Braxton, signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Belle Isle Manor House, 1632 Belle Isle Road

This excellent example of a small but formal Tidewater plantation was built for Thomas Bertrand Griffin following his marriage to Judith Burwell of Carter’s Grove in 1766. One-story wings were added around 1790 by Rawleigh Downman, whose family ran a thriving plantation for nearly 100 years. In 1918 Belle Isle was purchased by the Somers family. During this time, the main house was used to store grain and livestock. Sections of the interior paneling were sold to local craftsmen for use in their Wintthurh home. In 1939 Suzanne Pollard Boatwright and her husband Herbert Lee Boatwright embarked on a restoration of the house and the surrounding terraced gardens with the help of Thomas T. Waterman and landscape architect R.E. Burson. Reproductions of the original paneling were installed based on measurements Waterman took at Winterthur Museum. Belle Isle Farm was purchased by Edward and Rosemary Gruis in 1980 and sold to Belle Isle State Park in 2015. It is listed on the National Historic Register of Historic Places and is a Virginia Historic Landmark.

Bewdley, 1429 Bewdley Road

Mary Ball Washington (1708-1789), mother of George Washington, was born and spent her early childhood at Epping Forest. Her father, Colonel Joseph Ball, purchased this plantation, sometimes referred to as Forest Plantation or the Forest Quarter, in 1677 and built a residence soon after. When he was widowed, he married Mary Johnson. Colonel Ball died in 1711, and Mary’s mother managed her dower interest in this farm until her death in 1721. In 1731 Mary Ball married Augustine Washington of Westmoreland County. George was the first child from this marriage. The present house encompasses 1780 and 1800 additions, as well as the north elevation, which dates to 1820. When William T. Jesse bought the plantation, he added a finely detailed Federal-style, left-side addition with fanlights, mantels and casings in 1840. The house has been restored to its simple elegance, typical of a Northern Neck plantation home. There are two noteworthy dependencies, a c.1830 brick barn and a brick-lined ice house made from an estimated 15,000 bricks that line a circular pit that is approximately 18 feet deep. Epping Forest continues to be a working farm. Mr. and Mrs. John T. Kinchele, owners.

St. Mary’s Whitechapel

5940 White Chapel Road

Founded in 1669, this is one of the oldest churches in Virginia. Last year marked the 350th anniversary of its founding. The graveyard surrounding the church is one of the most picturesque graveyards in the Northern Neck. Situated on the westward-facing slope of a wooded hill, the graveyard contains more than 750 graves that date back well over 300 years. The oldest marked grave is that of “John Stretchley, Gentleman,” who died in 1698. The site includes the resting places of many other notable residents of Lancaster County, including a number of the members of the Ball family, maternal kin of George Washington. The Ball family graves are to the rear of the south wall of the church. Probably the most famous “resident” is Margaret Brooke Sullavan Wagg, a Broadway and film actress during the 1930s through the 1950s, who was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Actress, and is possibly a distant Ball relative.

Konerding Residence

9 Yankee Point Road

Overlooking the Corrotoman River at the confluence of its western and eastern branches, this three-acre property enjoys stunning views due to its raised elevation. The three-story home, built in the Low Country style, is surrounded with porches. Inside, period antiques complement elegant window treatments and upholstered furniture. Sorbet colored walls provide a backdrop for the owner’s various collections including oyster plates, English watercolors and Victorian shell-craft boxes. An elegantly outfitted pool house sports tongue and groove walls and ceilings.

SATURDAY, APRIL 18, 2020, 10 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

With a nod to conservation and preserving the rural flavor of the land, this driving tour takes visitors from the countryside to Main Street. Two horse farms are featured along with a charming cottage surrounded by abundant flower and vegetable gardens. Tewksbury, a sprawling stone home, is situated atop rolling hills and bordered by a pond and naturalized landscape. Nearby, Chance Farm is a distinctive frame design whose front porch affords sweeping views of grazing thoroughbreds. The adjacent cottage showcases antiques and vintage garden accessories. From rolling hills and pastures, it is a short drive to Historic Gordonsville, where The Exchange Hotel serves as Tour Headquarters. Now a museum, it was a hospital during the Civil War, with a medicinal garden planted by members of the Dolley Madison Garden Club. Main Street offers a variety of eclectic shops and restaurants. Also featured are the gardens at Montpelier, a restoration project of the Garden Club of Virginia using proceeds from past Garden Week tours. Located nearby, tour goers will enjoy two acres of formal gardens as well as special talks, events and refreshments.

TICKET PRICE INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE FOLLOWING 5 PROPERTIES:

The Exchange Hotel and Civil War Medical Museum, 400 South Main Street, Gordonsville

A thriving tavern during the 1840s, the original edifice burned and was rebuilt as a railroad grand hotel. Renamed The Exchange Hotel, it reopened in 1860. It was transformed into the Gordonsville Receiving Hospital during the Civil War, when 70,000 Confederate and Union soldiers were treated in this structure and on the grounds. At the turn of the century, it was transformed back into a gracious hotel, and operated as such until the Great Depression. In 1972, it was saved from destruction, and restored by local volunteers. At the same time, Historic Gordonsville, Inc. was formed. The site opened to the public as a museum in 1989. Today the Exchange Hotel is a work in progress, serving as an informational museum with experience rooms that provide a glimpse of the building’s rich history in all its many manifestations. A medicinal garden on the grounds was established by the Dolley Madison Garden Club. With the introduction of rail service, enterprising African American women began a tradition that memorialized Gordonsville as the “Fried Chicken Capital of the World.” Early passenger trains did not enjoy the luxury of dining cars and were greeted by “Waiter Carriers” who later became “Chicken Vendors.” Women balanced platters of fried chicken on their heads and served hungry passengers through open windows. Descendants of these women still serve chicken made from the original recipe at various special events in Gordonsville.

Chance Farm, 4037 Chance Farm Road, Gordonsville

Tucked into the rolling hills adjacent to Orange County’s most historic neighbors lies Chance Farm. Established in 2002, the farm consists of 135 acres in a conservation easement. Mr. Royster fell in love with the area where he visited clients in Virginia and, when he decided to downsize his business after 25 years, he came to the Virginia Piedmont from Kentucky. Wanting to create the farm from the ground up, he spent two years searching for a property that offered a blank slate. With only a cottage and a shed at that time, this land offered the perfect opportunity. He began building the roads, fencing and barns first, so he could bring the horses, and then settled into the cottage while the main house was constructed. Chance Farm, named after a favorite dog, is based on a similar stone home in Kentucky. The long white frame home has distinctive dormers and roofline, and an expansive front porch that takes advantage of the views of rolling hills and pastures. Inside, the home features wide open rooms and floors of reclaimed white and red oak from Pennsylvania. White walls that appear to be random laps of wood, custom cabinetry and lots of light lend warmth and character. Bookcases of knotty pine with a distinctive Briwax finish line the walls. There are two thoroughbred barns. On tour day, foals will be in the pastures. They will be raised at Chance Farm until they are yearlings, when they will be sold at Keeneland in Lexington, Ky. Brooke Royster, owner.

The Cottage at Chance Farm
4037 Chance Farm Road, Gordonsville

The cottage was built in the 1980s and is part of the larger Chance Farm. It features a 360-degree deep veranda and an unexpected year-round tented outdoor living room with brick floor. This covered outside area has see-through walls of purple wisteria. Flower beds surround the base of the half-bricked walls where a variety of plants, including iris, hydrangea and bee balm, add color and texture. The brick walkway leading to the front door is lined with massive yellow daffodils with perennial borders on each side. Climbing New Dawn roses grace the trellises on the front veranda. All were planted by the present resident. Views from the front door include a pasture of grazing thoroughbreds and a glimpse of their barn. The back side of the cottage features a charming garden shed and more perennial gardens of seasonal flowers. Adjacent is a fenced, raised-bed, vegetable garden that has been turned into a cutting garden. It has been planted with a variety of roses, hydrangeas, clematis and anemones mixed with shrubs and classical garden accessories from the owner’s collection. Inside, the cottage is deliberately left in a state of faded glory. There are no jarring colors, nothing is on point or perfect; this is a glimpse into a second generation antique collector’s world. Many collections have been acquired over the years: American Indian relics, religious artifacts, folk art, period furniture, eclectic artwork, Southern basketry, Treenware, old taxidermy and leather-bound books, all presented with a nod to the classics. Melinda and Gordon Bennett, residents.

Tewksbury, 17467 Lovers Lane, Gordonsville

This expansive French Country style home was built shortly after the owners acquired the land in 2007 and placed it in a conservation easement. Crafted of stone, it is situated atop a knoll to take advantage of the views of the mountains and rolling hills. This 100-acre horse farm, originally part of the Cairngorm property, was named after a township in New Jersey where the owners lived for 40 years prior to moving to Virginia. The rear of the home faces a five-acre spring fed pond that spans the length of the house and is home to a variety of birds and wildlife. Naturalized landscapes and fields for the horses surround the home. Across the pond is one of two restored barns dating to the 1920s. There, horses live and graze in adjacent fields. The owner is an avid horsewoman and enjoys the proximity to the Keswick fox hunting territory. The interior reflects a hunting theme in many paintings and accessories. Of note is a red wall in the entryway painted with 157 fox heads. Custom woodwork, columns and bookshelves, along with wood floors, add character to the living area. Touches of wildlife, including a sly fox sitting in an alcove, enhance the hunting theme. A massive stone fireplace anchors the room. Directly across from the entrance is a bank of French doors with views of the pond and the mountains. Downstairs features a family room complete with bar and wine cellar, bookcases and another stone fireplace. On the day of the tour, riders will be circling the cross country fields next to the home. Jacque and Richard Juntilla, owners.

The Gardens at Montpelier
11350 Constitution Highway, Rt. 20, Montpelier Station, (Garden only)

In the early 19th century, President James Madison had a large terraced garden of nearly four acres at his home at Montpelier. This included the site of the present formal garden. Following the fashion of the era, the Madison garden contained a mixture of vegetables, fruit trees, flowers and ornamental shrubs. After the widowed Dolley Madison sold Montpelier in 1844, the garden suffered a half century of neglect under subsequent owners. The boundaries of the garden were reduced. Most of the Madison’s plantings vanished over the years and the terraces were plowed down and planted with vegetables. The duPonts purchased the property in 1901 and began an extensive renovation, with some of the work done by Charles Gillette. More than 80 years later, Montpelier was transferred to the care of the National Trust for Historic Preservation. In 1989 the Garden Club of Virginia was approached for assistance restoring the two-acre formal garden. Using proceeds from past Historic Garden Week tours, work began in 1990 and ended in 1992. A Handing Over ceremony was held on May 2, 1993. The landscape architect was Rudy Favretti. In addition to the initial, and extensive, restoration, the Garden Club of Virginia has continued to fund restoration, repairs and plantings in the ensuing years. Today, the walled garden features a culinary garden, herb and medicinal garden, and a vegetable garden, as well as a variety of period flowers and a Victorian garden on the lower terraces. Special events take place from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on tour day (see Special Activities). In addition, master naturalists will be available to lead walks through the old growth forest.

Woodberry Forest School is proud to support Garden Week and honor the horticultural legacy of Violet Niles Walker, one of the founders of the Garden Club of Virginia. For 130 years Woodberry has transformed boys with the potential and will to succeed into honorable and respectful men of moral purpose. We do all this on our beautiful, historic campus — designed and built for boys — in the Virginia countryside.
TUESDAY, APRIL 21, 2020, 10 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

Visitors will travel through the countryside of historic Prince George County east of Petersburg, enjoying access to private homes with views of the expansive James River. This driving tour also includes a private woodland garden filled with numerous native plantings, wildflowers, shade-loving moss, and a huge assortment of ferns. Established in 1899, the Kanak Farm was operated by the family until its sale in 2018. The farm is now a special events venue and is a tour highlight. Tour headquarters is Merchants Hope Church, a national and state landmark. The parish was organized in 1657. The church itself was built in 1740 and houses a 1611 translation of the King James Bible, as well as other important religious artifacts.

TOUR HEADQUARTERS
- Merchants Hope Church, 11500 Merchants Hope Rd.

TICKET INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE FOLLOWING 3 PROPERTIES AND A GARDEN:

Merchants Hope Church, 11500 Merchants Hope Road

Located on a country road just five miles east of Hopewell and sheltered by ancient pines, Merchants Hope Church is an early example of Colonial American architecture, and the home of one of the oldest active Protestant congregations in America. Originally organized as a parish in the mid 1600s, today’s members worship in the third church structure c.1743. Made of red colonial brick in the Flemish bond pattern, with glazed headers and walls that are 2½ brick lengths thick, the interior walls and ceiling are of re-stored colonial-style oyster shell plaster. The center aisle, paved with original English “flagstones” that are believed to have served as ship ballast in their voyage from England. The Merchants Hope’s silver communion set was made in Charleston, S.C., and dedicated in 1875 on the 200th anniversary of the parish. A 1611 translation of the King James Bible, printed in 1639-40, is on display. Over the altar is a 1696 Tetragrammaton from England believed to be the only one in existence in North America. The Merchants Hope Foundation preserves and maintains this historic property.

The Barns of Kanak, 5503 Ruffin Road

With ten barns and six silos, the Kanak Farm was one of the largest and most recognizable farms in Prince George County when it was built at the turn of the century by John Kanak and his wife Mollie, who immigrated to the United States from Czechoslovakia. Although they had little money and didn’t speak English, through hard work and saving, they built the original two room house in 1899. The kitchen was added in 1903, and the farm was deeded to them in 1904. Between 1912 and 1914, a two story farmhouse was added. All of the homes on the property still have their original hardwood floors and finishes. The family lived off what they produced from the land’s fruit trees, vegetables, grapes, cows, chickens, pigs and mules. They raised peanuts, soybeans, corn and wheat. Only one of their 11 children remained on the farm – Ben, who worked it continuously for 75 years. In 2007, the site was designated a Virginia Century Farm. In 2018, it was sold to the current owners who have converted the property into a special events venue. Instead of storing tractors and raising families, the homes and barns are now used for weddings and parties.

Diane and Tom McCormick, owners.

9772 Jamescrest Drive

This classic transitional-style house was built by the current owners for their blended family in 2002. Located on the banks of the James River, it offers a view of the Benjamin Harrison Bridge in the distance. The cathedral ceiling in the foyer showcases a high window and impressive chandelier. Note the inlay pattern on the floor. Stepping down into the sunken living room, guests will appreciate the views of the river. Of interest in the kitchen is Cindy’s collection of birdcages sitting atop the cabinets, inspired by the breakfast room’s window treatments. Beyond the kitchen is the renovated bar area. The sun porch, decorated in cooling colors and wicker furniture and surrounded by scenery, invites leisure time, while the banquet dining room boasts framed historical prints and certificates and provides a more formal gathering space. A recent addition to the master bedroom includes a sitting area.

1600 Beechwood Drive, Garden Only

Visitors will notice numerous 200-year-old beech trees standing tall over a lush, diverse woodland garden of about four acres, giving the drive to the property its name. Mrs. Young began her garden while building their home in 1980. Initially, the homeowners wanted to dam a creek to make a pond, but it would mean drowning ferns and other native species. She rescued them by transplanting each plant bucket by bucket into the woods surrounding the home. Almost forty years later, the garden contains over 30 different species of ferns, including Christmas, cinnamon, maidenhair, glade and netted chain. A partial list of species that should be blooming during Historic Garden Week are cut-leaf toothwort, Jack-in-the-pulpit, celandine poppy, dogtooth violet, woodland phlox, Carolina Silver Bells, white blooming redbud, columbine, dwarf crested iris, several varieties of native azaleas, and blues. Centre Hill Mansion

1 Centre Hill Ave., Petersburg

Completed in 1823 by Robert Bolling IV in the Federal style, it was updated to incorporate Greek Revival decorative elements. Two U.S. presidents, Abraham Lincoln and William H. Taft, visited the home. Featured in modern-day films including Killing Lincoln and the PBS series Mercy Street. It is a restoration project of the Garden Club of Virginia, which began restoration of the grounds in 1980.

Bland Family Cemetery

Jordan’s Point 767 Water’s Edge Rd. N. Prince George

Located near the site of the family home, it is believed to be the final resting spot of Richard Bland, American patriot who served in the House of Burgesses for 34 years. Many additional Bland graves are recorded in this quiet setting along the James River.

Weston Plantation

400 Weston Ln., Hopewell

Built in 1789 and overlooking the Appomattox River in an area of Virginia whose roots as an English settlement go back to 1613. Listed on the National Register of Historical Places, Weston is considered notable for preserving much of its original interior, especially its distinctive moldings, wainscoting and chair rails. The ten room manor house will be decorated with flower arrangements by Appomattox Garden Club of Hopewell especially for HGW.

TICKET INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE FOLLOWING 5 PROPERTIES AND THEIR GARDENS:

The Hill House Museum

221 North Street

Imagine a family gone for an afternoon stroll never to return again. Such is the appearance of the Hill House Museum, which is completely furnished with its original family belongings left in place after 200 years. The c.1820 Hill House is a four-story antebellum English basement home, originally constructed in the Federal Style. The exterior has evolved and now includes Victorian influences. Several additions now connect the original house with the once separate kitchen. It is evident from the furnishings that the Hills were avid collectors and lived graciously. While it is unknown what the garden layout was when the last Hill sisters and their brother lived there, they were avid gardeners. Displayed throughout the house are gold and silver award certificates from international flower shows. A major garden renovation took place in 2012. More recently, the Portsmouth Historical Association completed a renovation of the house, preserving it. The house museum is open for the first time since the renovation by the Historical Association.

214 Glasgow Street

Believed to have been built for a local sea captain’s daughter between 1825 and 1835, this three-story structure is post and beam with clapboard siding. The first curator of the Norfolk Naval Shipyard Museum, Marshall Butt, Sr., purchased the home in 1948 and undertook its first major renovation. Subsequent work by the current owners, Mr. Butt’s grandson and his wife, have added an updated kitchen, family room and master suite. The home boasts many original features and artifacts among the modern conveniences that have been added. Six fireplaces and random-width fir flooring speak to the home’s history, while its restful palette is the perfect backdrop for antiques and more modern appointments. Artwork created by the homeowner’s brother graces several spaces, and photos ascending the stairwell honor family. An English basement apartment includes the family’s collection of historical artifacts, many from the Civil War. A cozy deck off the second story kitchen overlooks the garden, while a covered patio underneath provides a respite on warm days.

512 Hampton Place

Built in 1912, this three-story home was originally the residence of Dr. Charles T. Parrish, who developed Hampton Place. The current owners, lured by the charm of Olde Towne, acquired the house in 2001 after a fire destroyed much of the interior. Having been converted into apartments during WWII, the home was taken down to its studs and restored as a single-family dwelling. A wide front porch greets guests. The open foyer is the perfect space for a music room and contains a baby grand piano as well as several other instruments, including a 100-year-old Greek concertina, and a violin dating to the 1800s. Collections of sweetgrass baskets and pitchers provide functional beauty. A small case displays an 1862 Episcopal hymnal as well as other artifacts found in the walls during the renovation. One of the homeowners, a passionate University of Alabama alum, has an extensive elephant collection on display. The school’s color, crimson, appears throughout. Decor features art from local artisans, including oil paintings, watercolor, mixed media art, ceramic, and wood crafts. The kitchen, redesigned in 2015, opens onto a deck overlooking a pollinator garden and gazebo.

532 North Street

Construction began on this elegant home in 1911 by Mrs. Sallie Cox. Located on a tree-lined corner, it contains an eclectic blend of styles, as evident from the French mansard roof, to the Victorian curved, wrap around porch. The homeowner collects many forms of art on his travels around the world. The family room showcases sculptures and carvings, one of which was created by the owner’s father. There is also an impressive Empire style secretary. Carved ivory figurines representing the Madonna, Sir Thomas More, and Joan of Arc are among the owner’s treasured possessions.
The second parlor with its carved desk functions as an office. The leaded glass chandelier and a collection of transferware complement dining room furniture acquired in Colombia. Oil paintings inspired by artists from Boston to Brazil and ornate antique mirrors lend opulence to the masculine home. The kitchen, updated in 2018, retains original glass front cabinetry, and etched glass French doors. Dr. Joyce’s grandmother’s corner cupboard is located in the back hall along with the original elevator to the second floor. The garden features a saltwater pool and two ponds. Designed for entertaining, the yard is enhanced by beautiful iron gates and fences. Noteworthy is a nearly 100-year-old crepe myrtle. Dr. John Joyce, owner.

310 Washington Street, 23704

Placed in 1880, this home boasts contemporary conveniences while keeping its historical integrity. Fireplaces grace each room; 11-foot ceilings, walk-out porches on the first and second levels, as well as heart pine and oak floors are a few of the architectural features that bring charm to the residence. The owner has added a kitchen pantry and custom built-in bookshelves. The interior features numerous original pieces of art, antiques and furnishings obtained throughout the homeowner’s travels in the United States and Europe. Also on display are artifacts found during various restoration projects. In 2008, with help from her brother, the nearly half acre lot was transformed into a perma climate with formal gardens and an outdoor living pavilion. The pavilion features a Jerusalem limestone floor, gas fireplace and vaulted headboard ceiling. The garden, created in a courtyard design, includes a center fountain surrounded by four planting gardens that change with the seasons. Herringbone brick and oyster shell paths complete the attractive outdoor space. Perennials, herb garden, and stately 100-year-old trees are part of this Elizabeth River Project River Star home. Artists will be painting in the garden on tour day.

The heart of Richmond’s first Old & Historic District, St. John’s Church (1741) was the first church built in the city, and is notable as the site of Patrick Henry’s famous “Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death” speech. What came to be known as Church Hill is the oldest intact neighborhood, and contains the most antebellum structures in Richmond. Residences that range from early 19th century Federal style to mid-century Greek Revival and late 19th century styles, combined with granite pavers, brick sidewalks, gaslights, and a mature tree canopy, make Church Hill one of the best examples of preserved 19th century cityscape in the United States. Public open spaces along the river bluffs provide expansive views of the James River and city center, creating a unique parklike setting for this historic neighborhood.

125 North 25th Street

This frame double house is a rare surviving example of worker housing built to support Church Hill’s 19th century front industry. The c.1846 gable section offered one room up and one room down on either side of a central chimney; every room had a fireplace and a staircase. In 2016 the owners began an ambitious project with the goal of restoring the original gable structure, reconstructing a deteriorated older addition, and extending the living space with a contemporary addition. The original house was returned to wood clapboard siding, matching examples found in what was the original exterior wall. The reconstructed section is framed with pine and oak timbers cut from a family farm and finished with board paneling discovered under layers of drywall. The addition sits atop a former patio and is a two-story steel-framed glass box made of Sapele wood window frames built on site by the architect/homeowner. The house presents two distinct interior characteristics defined by the use of both historical and contemporary materials, such as polished concrete and historic pine flooring. Striking splatter/graffiti paint incorporated into the design of the new addition includes remnants, collected by the owners, appear through the front and rear courtyards.

The Shelton-Leftwich House

Built in 1846 by Elmira Shelton with a wing added in 1852, The Shelton-Leftwich House is a rare example of a frame Greek Revival home in an area where most of the side hall, Greek Revival homes are brick. Elmira Shelton was Edgar Allan Poe’s childhood sweetheart and was engaged to him shortly before his death in 1849. The house, along with three others on the same block, were all purchased by a Poe enthusiast in the 1970s, based upon his belief that Poe derived inspiration for his poetry in the home’s “enchanted gardens.” Distinctive exterior features include the sheaf of wheat balustrade running across the full width front porch, and an unusual paneled wood porch ceiling original to the house. Interior mantels and moldings are original. The old kitchen fireplace, discovered during later renovations, is located in what is now a home office in the English basement of the original 1846 dwelling. The double lot is notable because of its size, making the backyard spacious for the neighborhood. Boardwood, azaleas, roses and perennials make a welcoming entrance behind the white picket fence in front. Previous owners added a galley kitchen over the foundation of the 1852 addition. In 2018, the current owners expanded the square footage of the former galley kitchen to include a nine-foot island, walk-in pantry and large windows to the backyard. Portions of the original exterior wall are incorporated into the design of the new kitchen. Reclaimed heart pine floors and quartzite counters blend old with new, creating an inviting gathering space for family and friends.

The Hardgrove House

This elegant Greek Revival townhouse, complete with its original garden wall and outbuildings, was built for Thomas and Mary Hardgrove in 1849. Ultimately leaving the family and in disrepair, the house was purchased by Historic Richmond Foundation in 1958 and was restored in 1961 as part of the Pilot Block project. It once served as the headquarters of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities. The present owner first saw the house on the day he married his wife. After four years of agonizing over “the House,” they were able to purchase it when they returned to Richmond from New York. Many original details remain, including the marble fireplaces. Large period mirrors and antique gasoliers highlight the tall ceilings and gracious scale of its rooms. Located in the courtyard garden behind the house, a two story dependency contains the original kitchen with its antique oven still in place. The small brick building toward the rear of the lot is said to predate the main house and is rumored to have been used as a tobacco laboratory. Period urns, fencing and decorative elements, collected by the owners, appear throughout the front and rear courtyards.

The peonies in the rear courtyard came from the Hanover County garden of the owner’s great-grandmother.

The Hilary Baker House

Built by Hilary Baker (a lawyer and son of a Philadelphia mayor) in 1814, this Federal period house features mellowed Flemish-bond brickwork, rusticated plaster flat arches over the windows and a distinctive mouse-tooth brick cornice. Hilary’s sister, Eliza, was married to John Van Lew in the house; their daughter, Elizabeth Van Lew, is famous for being a Union sympathizer and spy. The house underwent various architectural changes in the early 1900s, including a two-story addition on the east elevation and Victorian gables, porches and windows. Richmond preservationist Mary Wingfield Scott took on the house as part of the Pilot Block project in the 1950s and removed much of the Victorian detail. The current owners began an extensive restoration in late 2012 to return the house to its original form where possible. One discovery was the original kitchen fireplace in the English basement (intact with its iron crane), which is now a feature in the modernized kitchen space. Vibrant ochre paint in the dining...
2714 East Franklin Street
This Greek Revival three-bay townhouse was built in 1856 by John Gentry for his daughter, Sarah Meredith, and her husband James. Starting in 1866 and for nearly 50 years, this was the family home of tobacco-nist Robert J. Christian. A classic six-over-six design, each room is 16' x 16' with original plaster medallions and crown moldings. Original floorboards consist of one continuous board from the granite at the front porch to the granite at the back door, more than 52 feet in length. The present owners consider themselves caretakers of this historical property. The kitchen was built over what remained of a preexisting foundation of the first two-story wing. Preferring an eclectic mix, the home features antique Waterford chandeliers, an early 1800s French mirror, modern pieces and contemporary paintings featuring artists such as David Hockney, Elizabeth Souder, Robert Walz and Andrew Baxter as well as Italian furniture and handmade Persian rugs. The rear porches overlook a courtyard garden with formal and relaxed spaces, seasonal and perennial plantings of boxwood, hydrangeas, and roses. With leaded glass windows overlooking Libby Hill Park, city lights and the James River, this mid-1800s townhouse is the perfect perch for neighborhood gatherings. Pam and Larry Masters, owners.

St. John’s Church Historic District
2401 East Broad Street
Formed from several earlier parishes, St. John’s is the oldest church in the city of Richmond. Leading up to the American Revolutionary War, St. John’s was the site of two important conventions, and is famous as the location of Patrick Henry’s memorable “Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death” speech. The church is designated as a National Historic Landmark. 804-648-5015 or historicstjohnschurch.org

From the restoration of the oldest English formal garden in North America at Bacon’s Castle to recreating an early 18th century garden at Stratford Hall, proceeds from Historic Garden Week fund a variety of projects across Virginia.

Throughout its 100 years, the Garden Club of Virginia has held fast to its core goals: to preserve Virginia’s natural resources and historic landscapes and to inform, educate and challenge others to become engaged in those issues.
Over the years, while leadership of the organization has changed, the women of the Garden Club of Virginia have remained steadfast in their mission to protect Virginia. They have worked to preserve landscapes, have fought against development in Goshen Pass, restored portions of the Great Dismal Swamp, and were early advocates for the formation of the state parks system.

Whether researching and documenting important landscapes across our commonwealth or restoring them, the work of the Garden Club of Virginia has impacted communities both large and small.

To celebrate our Centennial, we looked for a project that would be lasting and visible, statewide in its reach and unite member clubs across Virginia.

Wildflower walks, natural children’s play areas and pollinator habitats are just a few of the 54 projects made possible through our Centennial grants to our state parks.
We are marking our Centennial by working directly with Virginia’s Department of Conservation and Recreation and its Youth Conservation Corps to support State Parks, fulfilling the missions of conservation, beautification, horticulture, preservation, and education shared by both organizations.

The Garden Club of Virginia was instrumental in the founding of the state park system in the 1920s.

This gift is meant to inspire the next generation of environmental stewards.
Richmond – Monument Avenue

THURSDAY, APRIL 23, 2020, 10 A.M. TO 4 P.M.

Designated a National Historic Landmark in 1997, this broad avenue with grassy, tree-lined median is punctuated by five monuments of Confederate soldiers, the first of which, a statue of Robert E. Lee, was erected in 1890. Between 1900 and 1925, development along this grand thoroughfare flourished as architecturally significant homes, apartments and churches were erected by wealthy Richmond citizens and speculative builders. A statue of Richmond-born tennis player Arthur Ashe was unveiled in 1996, and the tour straddles the newly-designated Arthur Ashe Boulevard. The area remains a favorite due to its beauty, history and proximity to downtown and cultural venues. Virginia’s historic Executive Mansion, located in Capitol Square at the eastern end of this long avenue, will also be featured, along with the c.1845 Kent-Valentine House, the headquarters of the Garden Club of Virginia.

TICKET INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE FOLLOWING 5 PRIVATE HOMES AND GARDENS:

- Designed by Albert Huntt, this Colonial Revival house was built in 1909. The grand and historic façade is distinguished by a Doric entrance portico, a modillion cornice, three gabled dormers and a roof-top Chippendale balustrade. The front door is set into an elliptical, leaded-glass transom assembly with sidelights. The tall, arched windows of the first floor feature dropped keystones, while those of the level above are in a starburst pattern. The interior of the home is rich in architectural detailing. The broad entry hall boasts a three-story, Arts and Crafts staircase with massive mahogany newel posts. Above, a second-floor musicians’ gallery curves gently forward, and the stairwell itself culminates in a stained-glass skylight. The current owners have collected works by Virginia artists such as Philip Geiger, Ray Kass, Theresa Pollak and Andras Bality that invigorate the traditional spaces. The sunny kitchen, anchored by a black, honed-granite island, invites family and friends to gather. Bright window boxes and white cabinets add classical charm while grasscloth-papered walls feel fresh and modern, while an original radiator dish warmer remains in place, preserving character. In the enclosed rear pocket garden, a curated bluestone terrace is bordered by boxwoods, yews, hosta, phlox, hellebores, climbing hydrangeas and a Japanese maple, creating a leafy oasis.
- Kent-Valentine House, 12 East Franklin St. Featured on the cover of this guidebook in honor of the Garden Club of Virginia’s Centennial, it has been the headquarters of the Garden Club of Virginia and Historic Garden Week in Virginia since 1971. Open to the public at no charge on Thursday and Friday – featuring 15 private properties plus the Exec. Mansion and the Kent-Valentine House, both open on Thursday only
- Executive Mansion, 1111 E. Broad St. This GCV restoration site will be open to tour ticket holders especially for Historic Garden Week.
- The Boling Haxall House, 211 East Franklin St. Celebrate The Woman’s Club 125th anniversary at an Open House April 22 – 24, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

2710 Monument Avenue

- Designed by D. Wiley Anderson, this imposing classical home was built for William Schwarzchild in 1914, but in recent years stood vacant after serving as a senior center. Fortunately, the current owners meticulously restored it, stripping paint from the oak coffered ceilings and woodwork, replastering walls, refinishing parquet floors, rebuilding the front porch and replacing mechanical and electrical systems. Removing all remnants of its institutional use, they audaciously demolished the rear addition and built a new, three-story space rich in period detail and architectural interest. Where an awkward multipurpose room once stood, a kitchen wing now stands, its recessed-panel columns, architraves and chestnut wainscoting echoing the substantial millwork in the original parts of the house. The imposing walnut surround for the cooking bay mimics

Kent-Valentine House

12 East Franklin St.

One of the most architecturally significant and visually prominent antebellum mansions in downtown Richmond was designed in 1845 by Isaiah Rogers, a noted New England architect, for Mr. and Mrs. Horace Kent. It is the only remaining residential structure known to have been designed by this leader of the Greek Revival movement. Modified and enlarged by Mr. and Mrs. Granville Gray Valentine in 1904, this stately mansion occupies a quarter-block of historic Franklin Street. The building has been preserved and the grounds landscaped by the Garden Club of Virginia. It has been the headquarters of the Garden Club of Virginia and Historic Garden Week in Virginia since 1971. Open to the public at no charge from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. for Historic Garden Week only.

Virginia Executive Mansion

1111 E. Broad St.

Thomas Jefferson, the architect of the University of Virginia, designed this 1819 Federal mansion as the Virginia Governor’s residence. It is now the official residence of the Governor of the Commonwealth. The Governor and his family live in the mansion, and it is open to the public for tours during the Virginia Executive Mansion Open House on the Saturday before the Virginia General Assembly convenes. Tours are conducted from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., weather permitting. The mansion houses art from the Virginia Executive Mansion Art Collection, which contains paintings, prints, and sculpture donated by Virginians. The art collection includes works by Virginia artists and artists associated with Virginia history and culture. The mansion also features the Institute of Contemporary Art, a museum of modern and contemporary art. The mansion is open to the public daily, except for official functions and special events. For more information, visit the Virginia Executive Mansion website.

Virginia Museum of Fine Arts

200 N. Arthur Ashe Blvd.

Located in the heart of Richmond, the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts is one of the largest and most prestigious art museums in the South. The museum’s collection includes works from ancient to contemporary times, including American, European, and African art. The museum is also home to the Institute of Contemporary Art, which features temporary exhibitions of modern and contemporary art. The museum is open to the public daily, except for official functions and special events. For more information, visit the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts website.

The enduringly popular River Road corridor runs parallel to the James River. The section featured on this shuttle tour lies across the line from the city of Richmond, in close proximity to several private schools, the Country Club of Virginia, the University of Richmond and specialty shopping and dining. One of the oldest and most classic neighborhoods in Henrico County, many architecturally significant “country houses” were built on farmland here when suburban Richmond began to expand westward in the 1910s and 20s. Stately homes are tucked into the undulating hills and woodlands of this picturesque high ground above the James River.

a bluestone-floored, covered porch that overlooks a terraced back lawn bordered by perennial beds. Blooms picked here are taken indoors to a room designed exclusively for flower arranging, complete with floral refrigerator, a modern luxury for the avid designer. Tranquil pale blue walls downstairs match the colors of the eggs produced by the many chickens housed in the nearby barn, among them ameraucanas, silver laced wyandottes, buff cochin, and cuckoo marans. An adjacent dell, once an impenetrable acre of briars and thickets, has been transformed into a woodland park. Specimen kousa dogwoods, redbuds, ginkgos, Japanese maples, tea olives, river birches, saucer magnolias, clerodendrons, spicebushes and a weeping willow have been added to the existing hollolly pines. Wander the pathways that lead across charming bridges spanning a meandering stream.

WEST PROPERTIES:
Redesdale, 8603 River Road

Designed by William Lawrence Bottomley for Leslie H. Reed, this 1925 Georgian Revival house stands in a park-like landscape. The west wall of the foyer conforms to its curve. Throughout the house, generous windows illuminate such architectural details as richly carved mantels, wainscot, pedimented door surrounds, elaborate crown moldings, fretted cornices and applied molding wall panels. The home, built for entertaining and family life in equal measure, features secret doors between rooms that surely were used for mischief as well as service in earlier generations. A library, modeled after Marmion plantation, is entirely paneled in red gum and stained a rich walnut. In the plant-filled sunporch, nine French doors with lunettes flood the room with light and afford views of the gardens and grounds on three sides. Designed by Charles Gillette, the herringbone brick patio is bordered with vibrant beds made up of bricks cut from the nearby stone and garden paths in a meandering stream.

8701 River Road (grounds only)

The hidden driveway, shaded by towering willow oaks, leads to Longlea, a 1951 home designed by Clarence W. Huff, and to the many unexpected pleasures of its 30-acre estate. A gothic-shaped pool featuring an added bay with an infinity edge overlooks a longlea, or long meadow, below. This is the inspiration for the property name. When the pool was built in 2012 to replace an older, smaller one, the owners added a fully functional pool house with a changing room, bathroom, outdoor shower, kitchen, grilling terrace, two covered bays for outdoor dining and an indoor gathering space centered on a limestone fireplace. Floors are recycled Richmond City brick laid in a herringbone pattern. The surrounding gardens are dominated by greenery: boxwoods, oakleaf and ‘Lime- light’ hydrangeas, hostas and azaleas. Down the hill, a timber and fieldstone monitor barn optimizes air circulation for the horses housed within. It was built in 2014 using the centuries-old technique of pegging hand-hewn, heavy timbers of white pine. The interior is defined by a series of beams and trusses. A clerestory bathes the reclaimed wood threshing floor and the center aisle below with light and air. A thriving kitchen garden, cedar-fenced cutting garden, sheep enclosure and chicken coop are agricultural add-ons that will delight visitors.

8603 River Road

This cottage on the grounds of historic Redesdale was recently built as home to its former owners. Without sacrificing a sense of space, the new house is functional, organized and easy to manage. A fieldstone entrance porch leads into the generous interior. A large kitchen, completely open on one side, includes closed cabinetry on three walls, providing plentiful storage and ample counter space. Opting for the versatility of an open plan, the kitchen is unencumbered by an island. Instead, a long table in the central room welcomes convivial dining or serves as workspace to supplement the home office. The dining area seamlessly transitions to the double-height living area, furnished with antiques, an Oriental rug, landscapes and seascapes in oil and a baby grand piano. The cottage is just steps away from a serpentine walled garden designed for the estate by Charles Gillette. Inside the gates, in a Latin-cross plan, are two flower gardens. An intricate circular garden with eight “spokes” of brick path between flower beds, changed each season, is centered on a statue of a young girl. A corresponding rose garden, similarly patterned and centered on an arum plant, stands opposite.

Roanoke–Fincastle

SATURDAY, APRIL 25, 2020, 10 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

The Roanoke Valley, in the heart of the Blue Ridge Mountains, is home to the thriving city of Roanoke and beautiful surrounding counties and towns. The region has been recognized for its exceptional outdoor living that includes hiking, biking and multiple water activities in and around the Roanoke River and Carvins Cove. Nestled in the adjacent Botetourt County is the county seat of Fincastle, Virginia. In celebration of the Centennial of the Garden Club of Virginia, this driving tour features five private homes and gardens in this charming and historically significant community. Designated as a Lewis and Clark community with ties to both Andrew Lewis and William Clark, it became the county seat in 1772 when Botetourt County stretched all the way to the Mississippi River. Fincastle boasts multiple buildings dating to the 18th and 19th centuries including the historic courthouse, which houses records that attract genealogical researchers to the Mississippi River. Fincastle boasts multiple buildings dating to the 18th and 19th centuries including the historic courthouse, which houses records that attract genealogical researchers from around the world. It is also the location of Fincastle Presbyterian Church, a restoration project of the Garden Club of Virginia using proceeds from past Historic Garden Week tours.

TICKET PRICE INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE FOLLOWING 5 PRIVATE HOMES AND GARDENS, ALL IN FINCASTLE:

- Wind Flower Farm, 185 Wild Rose Way
  A Frank Lloyd Wright-style prairie home, Wind Flower Farm rests atop a 25-acre mountain plateau in Botetourt County. Built in 2003, the home’s design brings the outdoors in with vistas from every room. An open concept floor plan, tall ceilings and glass windows provide a 280-degree view of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Frank Lloyd Wright features include stained glass fixtures and overhanging roofing. Furnishings of interest include a 1700s antique breakfront, a Shenandoah Valley pie safe, two New Hampshire cedar captain’s chests, a Bucket Ben from Pennsylvania, and an apple picking ladder, which now displays a quilt collection. The master bedroom contains numerous antiques including a carved mahogany tester bed, walnut highboy, cherry blanket chest and Sheraton bureau. Other bedrooms display additional period pieces including a cannonball rope bed, a tiger maple canopy bed, and a Victorian curved maple desk. A Currier and Ives needlepoint over the great room mantel and needlepoint art displayed throughout the home, soapstone carvings and Alaskan artworks are special features, as are prints in the hallways by a local artist. Outside, there is a potting shed and a pergola, as well as vegetable and flower cutting gardens.

- Santillane, 99 Housman Street
  One of the most distinguished homes in Botetourt County, Santillane c.1795, is listed on the National Register of Historic Places for its architectural design and connection to the Lewis and Clark Expedition. This Georgian brick home occupies 24 acres on a commanding hill outside of Fincastle. The tract on which the home is sited was purchased by Col. George Hancock in 1795. His daughter, Judith, married Gen. William Clark, the famous pioneer and co-leader of the American West Lewis and Clark Expedition. The property’s historical grounds boast mountain views and lovely gardens offset by mature white oak, chestnut, and magnolia trees. The home’s kitchen wing and smokehouse were part of the original dwelling. The present two-story home dates from the 1830s. It features five chimneys and ten original fireplaces, eight of which remain in use today. Original interior metal latches with brass knobs carry the seal of England. The property has been a special events venue, as well as a bed and breakfast. It has now been returned to a private residence. The owners enjoy a love of gardening and are in the midst of revitalizing the grounds. The interior features a collection of original art by Edouard Cortes, Harold Little, a local artist, as well as work by portrait artist Nichols. Angela and John Sengen, owners.

- Broad Oaks, 1914 Grove Hill Road
  Originally built c.1749 in Bedford County on a 1,000-acre conveyance of land by grantor King George of England, this historic home has been relocated, renovated and restored to its former grandeur. Occupants and owners of the house in the 18th and 19th centuries included veterans of the Revolutionary War, War of 1812 and the Civil War. In 1898, the King family purchased the house “as is” and began the lengthy process of moving it brick by brick and board by board to its current location on Grove Hill in Fincastle. The exterior is completely original. The current owners purchased it in 2008. A large breezeway and covered patio facilitate pastoral views of the Blue Ridge mountains with cattle grazing in the valley. Deer, wild turkey, bear and many varieties of birds occupy the land nearby. The interior is completely original, and features wide-board oak floors and six working fireplaces. Kathryn Kerkering has an extensive collection of needlepoint on display. The art includes paintings by prominent local artists.

- Prospect Hill, 420 South Church Street
  Built high on a hill just south of Fincastle in 1818 by John Gray, Prospect Hill was originally called Gray’s Folly. Each window of the home frames views of the town and the mountains. Constructed in the traditional board-sided Federal style, it was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1979 as one of only two houses in Virginia built with those specific architectural characteristics. On both levels of the home, the front and rear windows and doors are perfectly aligned. This design is a nod to the classical lines of Federal architecture, and also an important engineering feature. This practical feature allowed breezes to circulate through the entire house. In 1930, the McDowell family added a back porch and west wing, and replastered much of the house. They were able to repair and retain the original white pine floors in the dining room. In 2001, the late Ron Lucas and his wife purchased the house. Valerie continues to renovate and modernize it. Note the restored hand-carved interior woodwork, as well as a mantel with a horizontal sunburst design and vertically carved sunburst panels. Valerie Lucas, owner.
Solitude, 108 Main Street

This Federal style house c.1820 with gingerbread detailing is located in the heart of downtown Fincastle. Ron Lucas and his son, Jason, completed an extensive renovation and modernization of it in 2005, which preserved and repaired the original heart pine floors and detailed hand-carved moldings. That year, it was purchased by the current owners, who have since added significant work to the grounds over the last 15 years. The gardens include heirloom peonies, multiple perennial beds and extensive hardscaping integrated into the landscape design, including a lap pool. During the garden renovation the owners discovered blue glass medicinal jars, animal bones and gigantic molars buried in the soil. The interior boasts an impressive grouping of American, English and Italian ceramics and porcelain, as well as a collection of work by Rockwood artists. Several paintings by well-known regional artists are complemented by pieces from the Ogunquit School. The home is filled with hand-crafted furniture personalized by Jake Cress. A piece of special note is the large carved bed he custom made referencing Mrs. Hagan’s love of flowers and gardening.

Charlotte and Robert Hagan, owners.

South Hill

SATURDAY, APRIL 25, 2020, 10 A.M. TO 5 P.M.
Originally called “South of the Hill,” South Hill is situated at the junction of Boydton and Petersburg Plank Roads, near Virginia’s border with North Carolina. A railroad town since 1889 and a tobacco town since the 1900s, South Hill is now a thriving regional medical center for Southside Virginia and a busy commercial center. This driving tour showcases homes and gardens and places of interest in the Commercial Historic District listed on the National Register of Historic Places in South Hill, as well as access to the MacCallum More Museum and Gardens in nearby Chase City.

TICKET INCLUDES ADMISSION TO THE FOLLOWING 6 PROPERTIES AND PLACES OF INTEREST:

624 North Mecklenburg Avenue
This two-story residence evolved from a traditional timber frame structure into the private home it is today over more than 150 years. According to local history, it is South Hill’s oldest house. William Loveland purchased the property known as Wilson’s Ordinary on the new Plank Road from Boydton to Petersburg before 1867, changed the name to Loveland’s Tavern, and operated it as a stagecoach rest stop. In the 1970s, Mr. Taylor’s grandmother saved it from destruction. With help from her daughter and son-in-law, she reinforced the structure, bricked the exterior, added the columns (rescued from Appomattox) to the front entry, and incorporated modern amenities. Inside, decorative columns from a Petersburg home are highlights in the formal living room. The original floor plan has been rearranged and the stairs were relocated. In the previous space, a local artist created a wallpaper mural. The current owners bought the property in the 1980s. Much of the period furnishings are from their families or has been collected from local estate sales. Grounds are landscaped with large old oaks, English boxwoods and an ivy covered cedar tree. This property was showcased during South Hill’s Bicentennial Home Tour in 1976.

Carmen and Stuart Taylor, owners.

406 Chaptico Road, Garden only
Multiple gardens, both formal and informal, encompass three acres surrounding this impressive home. A hidden garden to the right of the portico leads to the Tanner garden, named for the couple who installed the garden. Transformed from overgrown woods, the back of the property now contains an elaborate woodland garden. Dogwoods, azaleas, boxwoods, redbuds, magnolias, hydrangeas, rhododendrons, hostas, camellias, ferns, irises and spring bulbs surround a serpentine path. A peony and butterfly garden, and a gazebo from England, grace the left side of the residence. Beyond the house, the Maisonette serves as a place to entertain and provides a fair weather environment for a tropical collection of plants, including citrus trees. Containers overflowing with seasonal plantings and a peaceful water garden surround the brick terrace.

Judy and Roger Jacquelin, owners.

937 Chambers Street

Situated on a hill in the heart of Windsor Park in South Hill, this brick colonial built in 1999 is the home of a couple of busy educators with deep roots in Southside Virginia. Collections of ceramics, cut glass and photography are displayed throughout the home. Several photographs of Brunswick County relatives date from the 1900s. Family antique furnishings add warmth to the contemporary design of the home. Special pieces are located in the guest bedroom. The open floor plan accommodates the living, dining and kitchen spaces, seamlessly blending old with new. A patio off the living room opens to an area where the owners showcase their gardening skills. Perennial beds, pots overflowing with seasonal annuals, as well as ornamental and fruit trees planted over the years combine to create the feel of an urban farm.

Dr. Michelle and Scott Edmonds, owners.

MacCallum More Gardens & Museum, 603 Hudgins Street, Chase City

It began with Lucy Morton Hudgins’ love of gardening. Mrs. Hudgins was wife to Edward Wren Hudgins, former Chief Justice of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals. Five acres of botanical gardens and arboretum were established in 1929 and became her life’s work. The name of the house derives from Mrs. Hudgins’ Scottish heritage. She is related to the first Duke of Argyle and the seat of the head of the Campbell clan was called MacCallum More. Her son, Commander William Henry Hudgins, expanded the gardens to what visitors see today. He served as personal aide to President Truman as well as Admiral Carney, the Commander in Chief of NATO. Mr. Hudgins traveled extensively, and sent back statuary and fountains from around the world, which were incorporated into the garden design that also includes wildflowers and native plants. In addition to the gardens, the museum showcases the Arthur Robertson Arrowhead Collection, Native American artifacts, the Estes Express exhibit and other rotating exhibits. Located only 30 minutes west of South Hill, admission is waived with HGW ticket on tour day. mmmg.org returned to single family use in 2005. The owners collaborated on the design and construction of the renovation. Eclectic furnishings and period light fixtures, blended with contemporary art and whimsical collections, characterize the interiors. Integrated into the house redesign are several ways to experience the gardens. Four entrances from porches and adjoining rooms connect inside to outside, while views into the gardens are featured from both the first and second stories. A garden shed with a pyramidal roof, designed and built as part of the latest renovation, is showcased through a half glass dining room door. A blooming apple tree and a family rose are visible through kitchen windows. Additional features include a garden enclosed with a tall hombow hedge, an extensive native plant collection, heritage apple trees and a rose hedge.

Stratton House

271 North Lewis Street

As with many Victorian houses, this home, built in 1894, blends two styles. The two-story hip-roofed, brick Queen Anne house, with a peaked bay-window tower, has a Colonial Revival wraparound porch with Doric columns and a central pediment, designed c.1904 by architect T.J. Collins. The front doorway, which features natural wood French doors and sidelights with beveled glass, opens into a spacious front hall flanked by parlors and a dining room. The interior showcases its Victorian past, with carved natural woodwork, oak mantels, transom lights, marble fireplaces, period light fixtures, and crystal chandeliers. Across the back, the owners added a kitchen, bar, breakfast area, sunroom, and circular staircase in a four-story tower that complements the architecture of the house. For privacy and to create an urban garden, the owners reclaimed adjacent commercial property and bordered it with lush screens of arborvitae. The garden behind the house and garage includes shade trees, a patio, and circular patio can be accessed from the porch and driveway.

Pumphouse and Garden Center at Gypsy Hill Park

600 Churchville Avenue

This expansive 214-acre multi-use park was founded in 1889. With babbling creeks, winding paths, and a variety of old-growth trees, the public space is one of the beneficiaries of Augusta Garden Club’s award-winning Project Dogwood. This year, the Gypsy Hill Park Gateway Restoration Committee has raised funds, including a gift of $35,000 from the Augusta Garden Club, to improve the park entry. Projects include the restoration of three peak-roofed spring boxes, historic light fixtures, existing gates and brick piers with historic light fixtures designed by local architect T.J. Collins in 1890, and the addition of a decorative iron period-style sign marking the entrance. The park began as the site of Staunton’s water supply. Water from several springs was pumped to Reservoir Hill and dispersed to the city. Just outside the park gate, the red brick 1880s Pumphouse, open for touring, now houses the Stonewall Brigade Band, which has been in continuous operation since 1855. Adjacent to the gates, the hip-roofed, stick-style Garden Center with a wide wrap-around porch, built in the 1890s on the foundations of a 1770s Hessian-built stone house to serve as a community pavilion, is also open.

Woodrow Wilson Birthplace, Museum & Presidential Library

20 North Coaler Street, (Garden only)

Built in 1847 as the manse of First Presbyterian Church, this two-story Greek Revival mansion once marked the eastern edge of Staunton. Its siting on a hill facilitates a ground-floor service level, a street-level entrance, and a commanding view of downtown Staunton from the upper level porches. Thomas Woodrow Wilson, 28th President of the United States, was born here on December 28, 1856. Although he moved away as a child, he always referred to Staunton as home. The Woodrow Wilson Birthplace Foundation purchased the property in 1938. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt opened it to the public in 1941. Emily Smith, a former Garden Club of Virginia president, served on the founding board and was a driving force behind the restoration of the house and gardens. In 1933, in an early restoration project, the Garden Club of Virginia engaged landscape architect Charles Gillette to design the terraced gardens. The Foundation and GCV have partnered several times since, including the 1967 brick terrace by Ralph Griswold dedicated to Mrs. Smith. Recently, the Foundation launched an archaeological assessment in the garden, which furthers the understanding of this previously undocumented area. Access to the house and museum require a separate ticket, which can be purchased at the museum.

Project Dogwood at Gypsy Hill Park

600 Churchville Ave., and Montgomery Hall Park, 1110 Montgomery Ave

In keeping with this year’s Historic Garden Week theme of the dogwood flower, the Augusta Garden Club features its ongoing Project Dogwood and two spacious city parks, which are among its chief beneficiaries. In 1928, the club planted 228 dogwoods at the Woodrow Wilson Birthplace and surrounding area. In 1933, Staunton’s city manager, aspiring to make Staunton the dogwood capital of Virginia, added more. Today, many of the original trees have vanished due to disease and other causes. In 2013, the club partnered with the city to revive this vision by planting hearty native dogwoods in the city’s parks and other municipal locations. The project received the Garden Club of Virginia’s Commonwealth Award, the Garden Club of America’s Founders Fund Award, as well as grants from the Staunton Rotary Club and the Community Foundation of the Central Blue Ridge.

Mevluda Tahirovic Memorial Garden at the R.R. Smith Center

22 S. New St.

The restored 1894 Elkton Hotel building, designed by T.J. Collins, is among Staunton’s many preservation successes. The garden has transformed a once-derelict alley into an urban oasis of trees, seasonal flowering plants, and whimsical sculpture.

This Palladian style four-bedroom, three-bath home was constructed just last year. Homeowners were inspired by Venetian architecture from the early 1500s. They admired while traveling in Italy. Large windows and doors are strategically placed to allow natural light to flood the interior. Enter an oversized front door into an expansive living room filled with Italian antiques and Persian rugs. Cream and gray walls, wide baseboards and dark stained acacia floors on both levels provide an elegant backdrop for Venetian glass collections throughout. Wrought iron accents on light fixtures and antique wall sconces continue the theme. Kitchen cabinets painted with a pale gray glaze complement the Calacatta gold marble countertops and backsplash. A whimsical star patterned tile floor is a work of art that adds a sense of drama to the kitchen. The first floor master, and the other bedrooms, feature antique tapestry wall hangings collected by the owners. Mrs. Sundin is an antique dealer. Her talent for finding unusual pieces has helped create a unique home.

308 49th Street

This transitional, hip-roofed summer home features floor-to-ceiling double-hung windows on the front and sides that are accented by white cedar shake siding. These welcoming architectural features and a shady yard surrounded by a knee-high white picket fence combine to create curb appeal, causing passersby to stop and admire the home. Constructed in 2009, the palette for this open floor plan residence includes shades of pale gray, which is offset by white upholstered furniture and oak hardwood floors. Pops of yellow, from pillows to artwork (some painted by the homeowner), add accents, giving the space a bright and airy feel. The sleek kitchen is equipped with high-end stainless steel appliances along one wall. On the opposite wall, ample counter space allows for casual buffet style entertaining and meal prep. Tall glass front cabinets above white granite counters create a feeling of openness. A custom designed library with floor-to-ceiling built-in shelves is filled with novels, including many signed editions. Four bedrooms upstairs and a master suite downstairs, children and grandchildren are always welcome. Screened porches on both floors provide places to relax and enjoy summer breezes and crisp autumn temperatures.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest E. Williams, owners.

203 49th Street, Garden Only

Originally built in 1932, the home has been renovated a number of times while maintaining the integrity of the era. The surrounding grounds have also grown and changed throughout the years. Brick pathways, framed by granite knee walls, were created using recycled cobblestones from Norfolk streets. The current owner, an artist and accomplished gardener, replaced the front lawn with plants and trees; color, texture, height, and variety have combined to create a space for relaxation and enjoyment.

NEW TO HISTORIC GARDEN WEEK!
First time a property has been featured ful hydrangeas now line brick walkways that frame two garden sheds smothered with climbing New Dawn roses. The owners’ aesthetic is showcased on the south-west side of the property where a small bubbling fountain, surrounded by a concrete spiral, is planted with Irish moss. This “Art Garden” is an ongoing creative endeavor. Tucked behind a green screen of holly hedges, a small area of the yard is designated for experiments with plant combinations and self-seeding annuals. A nearby Japanese maple tree is adorned with dangling ornamental mirrors which reflect light on the surrounding shrubbery, creating the illusion of fairies dancing in the ocean breeze. An outdoor kitchen, built of the same granite stones as the original knee wall, is conveniently located near the front door. Raised bed vegetable and fruit gardens are located in the back, where neighborhood children have enjoyed helping plant and maintain the space. Under the morning. Inside, original oak plank flooring, referred to as the “Collectors Garden,” is home to several varieties of hydrangeas acquired while traveling through Great Britain, California and Washington state. An oak tree grown from an acorn found at Ground Zero in October 2011 stands as a testament that life springs eternal, and is a growing remembrance to all who perished that morning. Inside, original oak plank floors provide a backdrop for Persian carpets, family heirlooms, antique Japanese pottery, woodblock prints and other collectibles. The kitchen features a unique hand-painted tin ceiling. A brick floored sunroom showcases items collected and gifted from Masai villagers while on orphans’ “well digging” missions in Africa. A zen garden with a koi pond contains a rose draped arch and wisteria covered pergola are focal points, inviting guests to sit and savour the beauty of this fragrant respite.

304 53rd Street, Garden Only

When the owner and her late husband purchased this 1937 cottage 36 years ago, the grounds were overgrown with weeds and vines. Wanting to reference her British roots, they began to work, transforming the grounds into an English cottage garden. Many of the plantings were grown from seeds and cuttings given to the owners by friends. Now, they are mature additions to the garden. A small gurgling water feature, surrounded by purple spiderwort and four o’clocks, enhances the natural sounds in the garden. Birdhouses hang from a Rose of Sharon and nearby camellias. They welcome the many birds that visit it, especially a family of cardinals that returns each year, to the delight of the owner. A flagstone path allows visitors to walk freely from one garden “room” to another, discovering a mixture of natives, perennials and annuals. The owners spent years scouring antique and second-hand shops for unique garden items to enhance each area and bring interest to the lush plants that occupy every space in the garden. A rose draped arch and wisteria covered pergola are focal points, inviting guests to sit and savour the beauty of this fragrant respite.

108 55th Street

Built in 2015, this Charleston-inspired home sports a silver tin roof, and is full of amenities from the owners’ travels throughout Europe. A stained glass transom over the front door and large windows throughout the home let in plenty of natural light and easterly breezes from the nearby Atlantic Ocean. A chandelier in the dining room is a memento from Murano, Italy. It has detachable colored crystals that can be changed with the seasons. The aqua Aga stove and cooktop was one of the last of this style shipped to the U.S. from England, adding visual interest to the spacious chef’s kitchen. Colorful tile inlays from Positano reflect the couple’s love of Italy. A small screened porch off the family room has a red brick floor and antique sink. On the second floor, two bedrooms and an office provide space for weekend guests. In the master bedroom, a large iron bed is the centerpiece of the room, with the charming details of an old-style bed. A wicker chest in the hallway is a conversation piece acquired while antiquing along the Eastern Shore. A rose draped arch and wisteria covered pergola are focal points, inviting guests to sit and savour the beauty of this fragrant respite.

5504 Ocean Front Avenue

The small beach dwelling that once stood on this oceanfront lot was known as the Eisenhower Cottage, named for former resident Ensign David Eisenhower, who lived there with his new bride, Julie Nixon, daughter of the former president. “Oceanfront elegance” is the owners’ description of the three-story, five-bedroom, five-bath home that now stands in its place. Built in 2011, it combines the best elements of a modern home, such as hurricane windows and doors, as well as a geothermal HVAC system, with the charming details of an older New England home. These include first floor plank siding combined with second and third floor cedar siding, built-in cabinets and drawers throughout, and sloping: exposed wood rafters in a sunroom designed to look like a converted porch. A glass-enclosed, sunroom-style room in the back looks out to the ocean. A glassed gazebo provides a barrier for outdoor entertaining. Old Nags Head style benches along the sea wall and in a raised nest provide places to enjoy an afternoon cocktail while watching birds and dolphins at play in the Atlantic.

Williamsburg

Tuesday, April 21, 2020, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Williamsburg's Queens Lake served the Chesapeake Corporation as a hunting and fishing preserve in the 1920s and provided early colonists with a transportation route to the port at Capitol Landing. Now a popular neighborhood near downtown, it was developed in sections, starting in the 1950s. In this setting of mature trees and waterfronts, visitors will ride shuttles to a transitional waterfront home, a writer's cottage, a conservatory and a home that was designed for aging-in-place. In addition, garden experts will be available at a mini-symposium curated by Libbey Oliver, the former market manager of the Williamsburg Farmers Market, to answer garden-related questions. Allow enough time to drive the scenic Colonial Parkway to Colonial Williamsburg for escorted garden tours and access to the Rockefeller family's Bassett Hall, plus the Ludwell-Paradise and The Palmer House which are rarely open to the public, making for a fun and full day.

Queens Lake Neighborhood

Hawtree Landing
201 Prince Charles Road

Set amidst 18 acres of marsh and high ground, Hawtree Landing is a Coastal French style home built in 1959 for history writer Burke Davis. Davis positioned his writing studio to overlook Queens Creek just beyond an oyster shell midden discovered by archeologists, and used by native tribes as a lookout point. Today, the soft gray and white colors of oyster shells inspire the home’s finishes, including extensive stonework for garden paths, the conservatory and fireplaces. Visits to the Inn at Perry Cabin inspired many details in the current owners’ remodeling. Elegant living spaces extend from the home’s central skylight, which has the appearance of looking up into a light-house. A lanai spans the full creekside width of the home and expands areas for dining, reading, sunrises and wildlife observation. The master suite enjoys the same view. The oyster shell theme is repeated in the kitchen, which is decorated with oyster plates. Specimen shells are used as a backsplash accent. A suite for young guests has a nautical theme with antique portholes providing views between sleeping nooks. In addition to both the woodlands and sunny gardens, visitors will enjoy colorful plantings when entering the home through the formal garden, when descending the stairs to the pool pavilion or on the walk to the dock and writer’s cabin. Dawn and Rock Mullence, owners.

Hawtree Point
103 Prince Charles Road

A short walk through woodland gardens and down a stone drive reveals a brick enclosed courtyard that features a contemporary sculpture set in luxurious beds of calla lilies, liriope, medicinal salvia and pencil holly. The sand colored brick exterior of this Transitional style home is appropriate in this waterfront setting. Interior illumination is enhanced through skylights and glass pediments. In a home where the view is a form of art, soaring ceilings allow placement of paintings and sconces above the crown molding and provide extra space for collections that have been built over a lifetime. One of the most enduring is a display of giraffes in the media room. The main salon, anchored by a double-sided fireplace, is divided into a sunroom, living room and game area, which overlook the expanse of the creek and marsh. Walking past the breakfast room, guests enter a kitchen that has yards of extra counter space, used to display ceramic artwork. The dining room is made cozy by the

was the Williamsburg home of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Philip Johnson, a House of Burgess member, constructed the house before 1766. Martha Washington’s nephew, Burwell Bassett, purchased the home in 1800. Bassett was a Virginia legislator and congressman. Union cavalryman George Armstrong Custer was a guest in the household following the Civil War Battle of Williamsburg, and the best man at the wedding of his West Point classmate, John W. Lea, a Confederate officer. Lea, wounded during the battle, became engaged to one of the daughters of the family during his recuperation at Bassett Hall. Bequeathed to Colonial Williamsburg in 1979, the house remains much as it was when the Rockefellers furnished it in the mid-1930s, and includes many examples of Mrs. Rockefeller’s American folk art collection. This gift included 584 acres of woodlands and gardens that bloom in the spring and fall. As requested by the family, the house has been open to the public since 1980. Opened for Historic Garden Week by the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Ludwell-Paradise House

207 East Duke of Gloucester Street

Built c.1755 by planter-politician Philip Ludwell III, this house remained in the Ludwell family until 1926, when it was acquired by John D. Rockefeller and the Reverend Dr. W.A.R. Goodwin. It was the first property purchased by Rockefeller for the restoration of Williamsburg. Ludwell was a member of the Governor’s Council and owner of Green Spring plantation and eight other farms. His father, Philip Ludwell II, was a member of the House of Burgess and one of Williamsburg’s original trustees. Philip III’s eldest daughter, Hannah Ludwell Lee, inherited the house. She and her husband William Lee lived abroad while renting it. Among noteworthy tenants were William and Clementina Rind, who published the Virginia Gazette from the property from 1766 until 1774. Clementina continued publishing the paper after William’s death in 1773, becoming Virginia’s first female newspaper publisher. Portia Lee Hodgson, daughter of William and Hannah Lee, eventually inherited the brick house. In 1805 she rented it to her widowed aunt, Lucy Ludwell Paradise, when Lucy returned to Virginia from England. Today, Ludwell-Paradise is home to Colonial Williamsburg Foundation’s chief financial officer and his wife. It is furnished with an eclectic mixture of Colonial Williamsburg reproductions, vintage pieces and mid-century furnishings. Open for Historic Garden Week by the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Mini-Symposium with Garden and Floral Design Experts

Queens Lake Clubhouse, 234 East Queens Drive

From 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. join Libbey Oliver, former manager for the Williamsburg Farmers Market, for a mini-symposium presented by regional horticultural, conservation and gardening gurus. These include Arborist Andrew Koenig of Bartlett Tree Experts, Senior Extension Agent Emeritus Jim Orband, and Floral Design Experts. Refreshments are part of this educational tour stop.

Colonial Williamsburg Historic Area Homes

Bassett Hall, 522 East Francis Street

Located near the Colonial Capital building, this two-story 18th-century frame house set off by gardens and original outbuildings

233 East Queens Drive

The constraints of a peninsula lot with nearly 360-degree views of Queens Creek, Queens Lake and the York River inspired this home for aging-in-place. Designed by an owner-architect and his retired-military wife, this two-story home is only 24 feet wide, and employs a windowed turret to house a spiral staircase and an elevator. The design philosophy captures elements from various architectural traditions to create a home that is comfortable in time. To fit the lot and increase viewing opportunities of both sunset and moonrise, building corners were angled and fitted with glass. Ventilating screened transoms are at knee level below glass expanses. A collection of carved herons flanks the stone fireplace in a room that is accented by natural wood finishes and Douglass fir beams. A wraparound deck leaves a red cedar tree undisturbed. There are no steps at transitions from the front entry or the garage. The upper floor is divided into a master suite with views that duplicate those from the first floor, and a sleep-play-study suite and deck for grandchildren. The property was formerly owned by a master gardener and features turk’s cap, azaleas, redhuds and black walnut trees. Betty and Luther Blair, owners.

Palmer House
430 East Duke of Gloucester Street
One of Colonial Williamsburg’s 88 original 18th century buildings, this two-story brick home was built by John Palmer, a lawyer and bursar at the College of William and Mary, after a smaller home on the property burned down in 1754. In the mid-nineteenth century, the house was substantially enlarged and during the Civil War, it was occupied both as headquarters of the Confederate army and then by Union forces between 1862 and 1865. The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation purchased the property in 1927 and restored it to its late colonial appearance in 1951-1952. During the reconstruction the “put-log” holes in the masonry walls were discovered to have been left empty after construction. Colonial bricklayers left these openings to support scaffolding as they erected the walls of the house. Last year, the Palmer House was used as the home-away-from-home for the Designer-in-Residence as part of an inaugural program initiated by the Williamsburg product licensing department. The house is furnished with a mixture of period reproductions and adaptations based on original objects in the Colonial Williamsburg Collection and items from the Williamsburg line of products. The floral arrangements are provided by the Colonial Williamsburg Floral Studio. Open for Historic Garden Week by the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Escorted Walking Tour of Colonial Williamsburg Gardens, Starting at Ludwell-Paradise, 207 East Duke of Gloucester Street
Starting at 10 a.m. and departing on the hour until 3 p.m., enjoy escorted walking tours of gardens in the Historic District. Colonial Williamsburg is known for its geometric gardens, trimmed topiaries, pristine flowerbeds, and large shade trees. Learn how to transport 18th century landscape details and heirloom plants into your own garden. View pleasure gardens filled with topiaries and flowers, and a kitchen garden filled with heirloom vegetables and fruit used in the Colonial taverns today. Along the way, a variety of trees in Colonial Williamsburg’s arboretum collection will be pointed out.

THE GARDEN CLUB OF VIRGINIA IS READY FOR THE NEXT CENTURY

When the eight founding clubs of the Garden Club of Virginia gathered in May 1920 to create a statewide organization, they might not have imagined their vision would endure for 100 years. Inspired by a mutual love of gardening and an interest in education, protecting landscapes, beautifying cities and highways and conserving the richness of Virginia’s natural beauty, they spoke passionately about these values.

A century later these goals are still motivating our members. This non-profit organization has mobilized to protect natural habitats and native plants. Our members stood up to curb the blight of billboards and destruction of roadside trees along new highways. With nearly 50 significant projects across the commonwealth, the GCV continues to invest in the documentation, restoration and preservation of historic public gardens and landscapes.

For ten decades we’ve celebrated the beauty of the land, conserved the gifts of nature and challenged future generations to build on this heritage. This is our mission.

Honor Roll

Historic Garden Week is honored to acknowledge the generosity of businesses and friends across the state that supported their local tour at the $1,000 level and above as of January 21, 2020.

We thank Bartlett Tree Experts, our generous statewide sponsor.
For eight days every spring, visitors are welcomed to over 150 of the most picturesque private homes and gardens showcased in 29 communities across the commonwealth during the country’s only statewide house and garden tour, sponsored by the Garden Club of Virginia. Tour proceeds fund the restoration and preservation of Virginia’s historic public gardens, a fellowship program in landscape architecture and a Centennial project with Virginia State Parks, which the Garden Club of Virginia helped establish.

Visit www.vagardenweek.org for a complete schedule, to purchase tickets, and for details regarding itineraries, special activities and our current restoration sites.

We thank Bartlett Tree Experts, our generous statewide sponsor.

Me? Obsessed with trees? Yes. Yes, I am.

Vaughn Chandler champions the trees, landscapes and property investments of the customers in his care. And he’s one of the many reasons we’ve become the premier scientific tree and shrub care company in the world.
